NAZI BOMBER OVER LONDON

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 12—A German bombing plane roared over the London area in the face of heavy anti-aircraft fire today as for the third day in succession the Reich sent a fleet of war craft over the British Isles.

First driven out to sea after attempting to reach the Thames river estuary, the plane returned and swept over certain districts of the capital.

Hotly pursued by British planes, the Nazi raider then turned north. Heavy anti-aircraft fire was heard throughout the city, but the planes were not seen in flight or combat.

NAZI PLANE ON FIRE

Meanwhile, a large Dornier flying boat, believed to be a mine-layer, was sighted flying at a low altitude half a mile off the eastern coast. The plane fled when three British fighters swooped to attack.

British planes were believed to have successfully attacked one Nazi craft spotted off the coast. Three Spitfires attacked the raider and smoke was seen to pour from the German's tail as the plane streaked away to sea.

Gunfire coming from the direction of the Thames estuary was clearly audible in central London as anti-aircraft batteries opened up to chase off the invaders.

Tackled by British fighting planes and attracting the fire of anti-aircraft guns, German observation and bombing craft dipped over widely-separated areas on the east coast of England and Scotland.

GERMANS DRIVEN OFF

A wall of shrapnel was hurled aloft by British anti-aircraft guns when a plane assumed to be German flew at a great height over the Thames river estuary.

Another German plane, a Heinkel, soared over the Yorkshire coast today, but was quickly driven out to sea by British fighting planes.

A third plane, thought also to be a Heinkel, was spotted high over the Suffolk coast. An anti-aircraft barrage drove it off in a south-easterly direction.

These flights, in which no bombs were dropped on land, followed British night observation flights over west and northwest Germany.

The air ministry announced also that "security" patrols continued their flights over Sylt, Heligoland, and other German seaplane bases in Heligoland bight to keep German mine-laying and bombing craft from taking off.

2 MORE SHIPS SUNK

Losses to British merchant shipping mounted as the Cromer lifeboat station reported that the 2719-ton British steamer Granta hit a mine and sank off the east coast.

Find 23 More Bodies In Blasted Coal Mine

BARTLEY, W. Va., Jan. 12 (AP)—Recovery of 23 bodies from the blast-torn Bartley No. 1 mine shattered hope today for the safety of 68 other miners trapped behind twisted timbers and other debris by Wednesday's explosion.

The last 19 bodies—all badly mangled—were found as rescue crews stumbled through the wrecked tunnels 600 feet underground to the very center of the explosion area.

Rescue workers reported the men probably had been killed instantly and saw little chance that miners in other entryways had escaped a similar fate. Mine company officials and mine inspectors shared that belief.

"I am afraid that finding of the bodies means the other men in the mine also will be found dead," said G. J. Stollings, general manager of Pond Creek Pocahontas Coal Corp., which operates the workings.

It took approximately 38 hours to tunnel through tons of slate, rock and coal to where the 91 men were caught 600 feet underground by a blast mine inspectors said might have resulted when the miners cut into some abandoned gas-filled entry. Forty-seven diggers in the eastern section of the mine escaped.

Four bodies were recovered before rescuers reached the explosion scene. Two of these victims were said by officials to apparently have violated rules and started walking out of the mine after fin-

120,000 Red Troops In Finn Death Trap

By PETER DE HEMMER GUDME
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HELSINKI, Jan. 12 (INS)—Complete annihilation of 120,000 Soviet troops, including some of the best detachments of the Red army, was predicted by Finnish military observers today.

Two divisions totalling 40,000 men have already been wiped out.

A third army of 20,000 is surrounded and facing extinction in the Salla sector.

A fourth division, being rushed to the rescue of this group, faces extermination when it walks into the Finnish trap.

DIVISIONS TRAPPED

In the southern section north of Lake Ladoga, two more divisions of 20,000 men each have been hurled back and trapped by the Finns and their early defeat is predicted.

Soviet attacks at Pitkeranta and Sortavala in the Lake Ladoga district have been repulsed, with the result that efforts to relieve the division trapped at Suojaervi have terminated thus far in failure.

The detachment attempting to relieve the Salla group attacked at Joutsijaervi, 30 miles west of Sal-

la. Observers reported to Helsinki that the relief column consisted of trained troops and artillery, far better equipped than most Russians operating in Finland.

OPEN NEW DRIVE

The Finnish high command ordered an offensive in the direction of the railway line at Kemijaervi to cut the Russian communications and encircle the invading forces.

Latest reports from Salla said the 20,000 Red army troops operating there during the past few weeks had been definitely trapped after a long and hard fight in which two Finnish columns closed in slowly.

Their annihilation will start at

STALIN, FURIOUS IN DEFEAT, 'PURGES' EDITOR, GENERALS

By VERNER FORCHHAMMER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 12—Infuriated by the abject failure of the Soviet military campaign in Finland, Josef Stalin has widened his purge to include industrial and diplomatic chefs as well as army leaders and many mportant personages already have been "liquidated," it was reported in Copenhagen today.

Among those reported to have felt the dictator's wrath were A. A. Zhadanov, director of the Soviet press and publisher of the official Communist party newspaper, Pravda, who was said to have advised Stalin to invade Finland and predicted a "walkover" victory like that scored by the Russian army in Poland.

Others were said to have been Gen. Meretzov, former military commander of the Leningrad district, who led the first Russian troops into Finland, and V. K. Dereviansky, Soviet minister to Helsinki.

Both of these men, according to the Copenhagen reports, have been executed.

Meretzov was removed from his post only a short while after hostilities broke out and was replaced by Gen. Gregory Stern, one of Stalin's most trusted aides.

Recent reports have stated that Stern also failed to come up to the dictator's expectations and had been relieved of his command, to be succeeded by Gen. Simeon Budenny, the famous old cavalry leader of the Red army.

Bigamy Laid to Rich, Thrice-Wed Fugitive

LEOMINSTER, Jan. 12—Object of a police search that is to extend to two continents, wealthy, middle-aged Roy C. Baker, vice-president of a famous bookbinding company of Clinton, was revealed today as principal in a marital mixup that might have been taken from the plot of a Shakespearean drama.

The hunt for Baker, a successful business man, was begun when a bigamy warrant was sworn out by the wife he left behind—his first love, the former Mildred E. Thomas, of Quincy.

Mrs. Baker No. 1, now a prominent clubwoman and church worker whose name often appears in the society sections of newspapers, married Baker in Quincy on Feb. 16, 1917, and with her he lived in happiness until March, 1936.

Mrs. Roy Baker

At that time, Mrs. (Thomas) Baker told police today, she divorced her husband at Reno, Nev. Then she went back to her home in Summit ave., Wollaston, and Baker—well, Baker went to Hollis, N. H., and wed Miss Leah Ojanen.

"That young lady was blonde, and much younger than Mr. Baker," the first Mrs. Baker said pointedly.

Miss Ojanen also was extremely attractive, according to her friends.

After a time, Mrs. Baker No. 1 told officials, her ex-husband tired of his young wife, came to her and asked her to take him back.

"I went to a lawyer friend," she said, "and he told me a divorce obtained in Reno was not legal in Massachusetts. So Roy had his second marriage annulled and we went back together again. We lived on Main st., Leominster."

THEN HE WED AGAIN

All went well under this arrangement of a love renewed until last month, the first wife charged.

"Then Roy told me he was going to Worcester on a business

DRIVER OF DEATH CAR

OLIVIA THORNDIKE, NEWTON DEBUTANTE

PROBE DEBUTANTE DEATH CAR CASE

The fate of Miss Olivia Thorndike, 18-year-old debutante and member of a noted Boston family, rested in the hands of police today who were given two weeks to investigate the automobile death of William D. Murphy, 72, of Parson st., Brighton.

The attractive socialite faces possible manslaughter charges after she knocked down and fatally injured Murphy at Arlington and Market sts. as he was walking home.

POLICE PROBE CASE

Miss Thorndike, who was not arrested, did not appear in Brighton District Court today and officers received time to investigate the case.

Two years ago the victim, a retired motorman, was injured in a similar accident at the same corner. Last night he was walking home from St. Elizabeth Hospital when he was struck by Miss Thorndike's car.

He died a few minutes later at the hosital.

Murphy, a native of Malden, moved to Brighton 15 years ago and was to have celebrated his 49th wedding anniversary with his wife and nine children on Jan. 26. In his pockets police found a WPA work slip authorizing him to be hired as a watchman on the Huntington ave. subway project.

Police investigators said the elderly pedestrian was knocked down while crossing Market st. Miss Thorndike's car had just started in the direction of Brighton Center as the traffic lights changed.

TRIED TO AVOID MISHAP

She swung the car hard to avoid him but Murphy was knocked to the pavement and an arm and leg broken. He was taken to the hospital by Miss Thornton and Mrs. Grace F. Maguire of Goodenough st., Brighton, wife of Sergt. Joseph T. Maguire of the Brighton police but he died without recovering consciousness, physicians said.

Mrs. Maguire accompanied the girl to the Brighton police station where she made a report of the accident. She said she failed to see the man crossing the street until he loomed just in front of her headlights.

3 LEAP INTO NETS, LADDERS SAVE 10 IN SALEM BLAZE

SALEM, Jan. 12—Two girls, 18 and 19 years old, and their mother jumped from the third story into a fire net here today, and 10 persons, including a 3-year-old baby, were carried down ladders as a fire swept a tenement building in Ward st.

The brother of the girls, Robert DeMeule, 15, hung screaming to a window ledge of the building, 45 feet above the street, until he collapse dfrom smoke inhalation and fell back inside the building.

Capt. John Whelton climbed a ladder, pulled young DeMeule out, and carried him down to the street. The boy was taken to Salem Hospital, where he was placed in a respirator.

GIRLS, WOMAN LEAP

Another victim of the fire was Fireman Edward Ryan, so badly cut by flying glass that he was also taken to the hospital.

The four members of the DeMeule family, mother, two daughters and Robert, were trapped on the top floor of the building by the flames and the billowing clouds of thick smoke.

Firemen spread the net on the street and called to them to jump. First Lucille DeMeule, 18, then her sister, Yvonne, 19, then Mrs. Ursina leaped to safety.

Fireman Philip Worthy carried 3-year-old Marion L'Italienne down the ladder from her second-floor home to safety.

The persons assisted down ladders included Lorraine Abbott, 18; her sister, Eleanor, 17; their mother, Mrs. Beatrice, and a visitor in the house, William Pelletier; Mrs. Lillian L'Italienne, mother of the baby, and her 18-year-old daughter, Edith; Bernard Kulik and his mother, Mrs. Stephania Kulik.

John J. Wollocko, owner of the house, told police the fire undoubtedly started in the cellar. He said there had been an old barrel suspended from the beams of the cellar ceiling with ropes.

OIL ON FLOOR

Yesterday, he admitted, the ropes snapped and the barrel fell to the floor, some of the oil seeping out and trickling toward his oil burner.

Returning from work today at lunch time, he entered the cellar

WANDERER

HERE'S Paul Gianakos, Dover st., South End, giving a peeking-out interview about that trip down the street which started all the excitement. It seems he made a social call on a little lady a few doors down, but he forgot to tell mother about it and so police and neighbors got pretty upset.

Benay Venuta, Singer, to Wed Again

BENAY VENUTA
She'll Wed Advertising Man

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—Benay Venuta, the singer who starred in "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," admitted today it was only auf weidersehen.

She and Armand Deutsch, advertising man, will be married at Sherry's Jan. 18—"at 6:45 p. m., so the hands of the clock will be going up for luck."

Both she and Deutsch are 27. Her former husband, Dr. Kenneth Kelley, psychiatrist, obtained a Reno divorce last October.

"He did me a great favor," she said, "for I was tied up with radio work and couldn't get away. He's a splendid person."

Regarding her fiance, she said: "I've known Mr. Deutsch about a year. Though I had no intention of marrying at the time of my divorce—well, when you find yourself free it seems like a good idea."

Deutsch is a son of Mrs. David M. Levy and a grandson of Julius Rosenwald, a founder of Sears-Roebuck.

Though they planned a Nassau honeymoon, business has forced them to postpone it. Instead they will visit Deutsch's family at Croton-on-Hudson for a few days before taking up residence in Park ave.

2 Children Hit By Revere Cars

Two small children were struck by automobiles in Revere today, victims of storm accidents, according to police.

Vera Peddel, 12, of Howard st., was struck by a car driven by Miss Helen Welch, 30, of Cambridge st., as she crossed Park ave. Miss Welch took the little girl to Revere General Hospital where doctors said her condition was not serious.

Joseph Piano of Martin st., Revere, told police that while he was driving along Revere st. a small boy ran into the side of his car, but jumped up and ran off.

HOME, FORGIVEN OVER REPORT CARD

Little Marie Deluca, 11, of Tuttle st., Dorchester, and her puppy were back at home today and Marie's mother knew all about her report card.

But Mrs. Claire Deluca was so glad to have Marie safely back again that she was willing to forgive and forget about the child's poor marks in school.

Marie, with a basket on her arm containing her puppy, a bottle of water, a bottle of milk and some sandwiches, was found hiking along the state highway near Dedham by State Trooper S. C. Sullivan of the Wrentham barracks.

Check Hospitals In Search for Dowd

The small army of police, G-men, postal inspectors and private investigators searching for former Sheriff John F. Dowd centered their hunt in New York state hospitals today, but they were not overlooking a report that Dowd had been seen near Greenfield, N. H.

They followed up an Albany "lead" after Dist. Atty. William J. Foley was informed by Lieut. John J. Walkins that an Albany newsstand proprietor had identified a photograph of Dowd as that of a man who bought papers from him daily between Nov. 22 and Dec. 31.

Foley also announced he had ordered local police to bring in for questioning Henry Lyons of Cambridge, alleged to have been the man who met Mrs. Dowd at the Back Bay station when she returned o nNew Year's Eve.

According to Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle, a hotel register and other documents, the latter said to have been found in an Albany apartment, are on the way here and will be submitted to an expert to determine if they bear Dowd's handwriting.

Doyle also said he had been informed that drinking glasses found in the same apartment were under examination for fingerprints.

Doyle announced he was planning to question a man and a woman relative of the former sheriff. Dowd has been missing since Nov. 20. Dowd's wife, who fled with him, returned to Boston on Dec. 31.

TRUCKS IDLE; ACT TO BALK STRIKE

With more than four-fifths of the trucks in the city tied up, 175 transportation operators met at the Hotel Manger today, declaring all negotiations with the truck drivers' union were off and taking a roll call to determine new and drastic action i na situation which for two weeks has threatened a general strike.

Only perishables and other stuffs which might spoil were moved today as the result of yesterday's half "holiday" of the drivers.

Union officials claim the operators ordered wholesale lockouts when the men returned to work at the termination of a meeting yesterday morning.

The truck operators claim the drivers' holiday was really a strike and as such a violation of existing agreements.

WANT LONGER CONTRACT

Today in the main ball room at the Hotel Manger they voted on new proposals which will include an anti-strike clause in any new contract and also they will insist on contracts for a longer period than one year to avoid the annual threats of strike which hamper shippers in all lines of business.

In spite of the claims and counter-claims, however, both sides agreed to meet again this afternoon in the offices of the Board of Conciliation and Arbitration at the State House.

Whether or not the "strike" or "lockout" would spread to all drivers, about 5500, in the Greater Boston area appeared to depend largely on this meeting, although there were other factors.

Gov. Saltonstall and Mayor Tobin, both confined to their homes with colds, were keeping in close touch with the situation through their secretaries.

MORE FOODSTUFF

Foodstuffs for hospitals were kept moving by agreement, Mayor Tobin declaring that if necessary food was tied up, it would be moved in city-owned or commandeered trucks.

The tie-up was most noticable in the warehouse and terminal section of South Boston.

At the Fish Pier, it was said the movement of fish from wholesale houses on the pier to retail dealers was cut about 50 per cent.

The State Board summed up the situation in a statement which said:

"The board was notified by the union that it had declared a 'holiday' in order that the members might participate in the union's meeting.

"After the meeting members were told to go back to work. Upon reporting back to work many of the drivers were told by the employers that there was no work for them to do.

"In order to try again to bring about a settlement the board requested that both sides meet again for further negotiations. This both sides, after a conference with the board agreed to do."

CANCEL DAYS OFF

All days off were cancelled by the Boston Police Department as the situation became more tense. Food dealers and other establishments were said to have stored up large quantities of supplies in anticipation of a truck tie-up.

"Our men are ready and willing to go back to work but the employers are refusing to permit them," said Nicholas F. Morrissey business agent of the union and president of the State Federation of Labor. "We intend to seek compensation for the men from the Unemployment Compensation Commission. They are unemployed through no fault of their own."

For the employers, Atty. Cahouet said:

"The position of the employers is that the union, having voluntarily left their employment without warning and the employers' knowledge in practically all companies as a so-called 'holiday' —it is in fact a strike."

OLD AGE ANNUITY PLAN APPROVED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (INS)—Senator Wagner, (D.) of New York, said today the Social Security board has approved in principle his proposal that the government sell old-age annuities.

Board experts, he added, are aiding him unofficially by making studies of the plan, which would provide annuities up to $100 a month.

OBJECTIONS SEEN

The annuities would be sold through postoffices, much as "baby bonds" and postal savings accounts are handled. Wagner said that payments could be made annually or in installments throughout the year. His plan also would permit a lump-sum payment for a government-guaranteed annuity.

Wagner declared that he would introduce legislation to carry out the plan at this session, but added that most major insurance companies might offer stiff opposition.

Without naming the official, he added that an officer in one major company, however, had advised him the program would not compete with private annuity plans and that it would help to make the country annuity-minded.

The senator said the annuities could be sold by the government at about one-third less than the cost of similar policies issued by private insurance companies. The cost to the government, some authorities contend, would be confined largely to administration of the program.

WOULD MATURE IN 20 YEARS

The new plan, Wagner declared, would be especially beneficial to small independent business men who do not now come within provisions of the Social Security Act. These persons, he said, have been especially anxious to make some low-cost provision for their old age.

Wagner proposes that the annuities be so arranged as to mature in from 20 to 25 years. Thus, a young man could start buying an annuity at 20 and begin receiving income from it at 40 or 45. Wagner expressed the view that any plan to withhold annuities until a policyholder reached a specified age would be too rigid.

Besides the annuity proposal, Wagner wants Congress to resurvey the Social Security law to ascertain whether existing unemployment insurance benefits could be increased.

He said that the present law makes no prevision for workers forced to quit employment because of illness.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Increased sentiment for diverting the administration's $460,000,000 special defense request to restoring budget cuts in farm benefits was noted today as Congress bogged down to its customary early-session pace after a spirited start.

The House was expected to pass before nightfall a deficiency bill providing $267,000,000 for the army, navy and anti-spy force which President Roosevelt augmented under his September emergency proclamation. The Senate is in recess until Monday.

Picking up the suggestion of Senator Adams (D.) of Colorado that the emergency defense item be transferred to non-military activities, Senator Lucas (D.) of Illinois said:

"It might be possible to cut several hundred million dollars from defense appropriations and use it for farm parity payments. That would make unnecessary any additional taxes for financing farm payments."

The President omitted any request for 1941 parity payments in his budget, on the theory that farm prices would be maintained at a reasonably good level, but said that if the payments were needed to assure farmers 75 per cent of parity (the pre-1914 level), Congress should levy new taxes to pay for them.

F.D. Asks Congress To Give Aid to Finns

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today he had asked Congressional leaders of both parties to work out the problem of giving assistance to Finland.

The President had disclosed Tuesday he was discussing the matter of aid to Finland with the State Department.

Asked at his press conference today whether the conversations had resulted in any decisions, he replied in the negative.

He said, however, that the question of providing assistance to the Finns ought not to become one of partisan politics. In other words, he said, the Russian attack on Finland, the destitution of large numbers of people, and the need for maintaining Finnish independence, should not be a party matter over here.

He said he understood that at his suggestion Congressional leaders were trying to get together to see what might be done.

But, asserting he had not the faintest idea of specific steps that might be taken, he turned aside questions about whether aid might be extended in the form of loans or the selling of the army rifles to the Finns at a nominal sum.

CONFERS WITH TAYLOR

Mr. Roosevelt had as one of his callers today Myron C. Taylor, whom he had appointed as his personal representative to the Vatican to work for peace.

In response to questions, the Chief Executive said he did not contemplate giving Taylor any specific instructions, but would talk over with him the whole situation.

A reporter inquired whether Taylor was acquainted with the objectives of the Chief Executive's peace proposals. Mr. Roosevelt said there were no objectives, that he talked with people all the time about ideals of peace. But those ideals can not be put down point by point, he declared.

The matter, he said, is too didactic.

Newspapers, he said, have to be didactic, but that in his own mind he was not. He said he knew that fact spoiled a story, but it couldn't be helped.

One F. D. Man Files For N. H. Delegate

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 12 (AP)—Rudolph G. Cartier of Rochester filed as a delegate-at-large to the Democratic National Convention today, pledged to President Roosevelt's nomination for a third term.

Cartier's filing marked the opening in the entire country of declarations of candidates to the Democratic and Republican national conventions. Three Republicans filed as delegates-at-large, all unpledged. They are Sen. Styles Bridges, Gov. Francis P. Murphy and Charles E. Carroll, former mayor of Laconia.

Plan for New Narrow Gauge Stay Now Ready

A detailed plan under which Winthrop's special town committee hopes for continuance of the Winthrop branch of the Narrow Gauge Railroad, after Jan. 27, the date set for the road's abandonment was ready for submission to the Narrow Gauge bondholders today.

A meeting with a committee of the latter group was called at the National Shawmut Bank building, Boston.

Frederick Crocker chairman of the seven-man Winthrop committee declined to reveal the plan until after the presentation to the bondholders whose committee is headed by Charles A. Collins president of the Lynn Institution for Savings.

Crocker's committee developed the plan at a meeting held in Winthrop Town Hall. The town twice has rejected a plan for extension of the Boston Elevated to Winthrop.

With $15,000 made available by the town, Crocker's group seeks to forestall abandonment of the line until "fairer" legislation permitting the Elevated to enter Winthrop is adopted by the 1941 Legislature.

Corsets in Milady's 1940 'Swim Suits'

By CHARLES E. HARNER

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP)—Women (what won't they think of next?) will do a lot of swimming this summer in the closest thing to a corset you ever saw.

The creation, called a "swim suit" but not in any respect resembling the conventional middy blouse and bloomers, was displayed "to the trade" on four blondes and two brunettes. One of the latter also wore a red hair-ribbon.

"No more need the fastidious lady wear a rubber girdle under her bathing suit," explained one of the hired help. "We've combined the works into a thing of beauty."

What they've actually done is woven tough rubber into the cloth so that the suits will stretch in one direction and not in the other.

CLATTERING BEAUTY

Fifty keen eyed experts, seated at tables in a Fifth ave. atelier, tried to look blase while the models paraded among them on wooden clogs. The nose gave a rough imitation of market day along the Zuyder Zee.

A sales manager asserted:

"These suits are designed so that the feminine form is accentuated along the most flattering lines with the contour of the body gracefully feminine."

He pointed out what he meant. He was right.

One of the observers, commenting a sleek white suit, opined:

"There is little more to this than meets the eye—but not much."

He seemed pleased.

Four or five blue suits attracted the most attention. They were worn by a blonde. She was 5 feet, 4 inches high; weight, 106; color of eyes, blue; hair, curly. She also could have appeared in an ulster, with earmuffs and galoshes, and still have attracted attention.

INTERESTING IS RIGHT!

One of the suits she wore was the color of a tropic night, studded with stars. Closer examination disclosed the stars actually were the blonde herself showing through eyelet embroidery.

"Indeed it is not embarrassing," she said. "It makes life more interesting."

One of the brunettes displayed a pink suit. She wore earrings.

Some of the observers were intrigued by the discovery that slide fasteners have replaced the hook-and-eye. The slide fasteners lock.

Some of the women present said they especially liked one little number described as a "princess with swing skirt" and separate trunks. It was black satin and a knockout.

It looks like a god year for a seashore vacation.

Call Medford Wife In Dog Track Probe

After a search of several days United States deputy marshals today located Mrs. Mary Ravenscroft, sister of James J. Egan, associated in the operation of the Dighton dog track and served her with a summons to appear before the federal grand jury now investigating the track.

Mrs. Ravenscroft of Fellsway West, Medford, is expected to appear before the jury tomorrow.

The first witness today was Walter T. Mason of South Boston, who, federal investigators say, was active in organizing the track setup and afterwards was on the payroll as an investigator.

U. S. Atty. Edmund L. Brandon's office said Mason would probably be questioned all day.

Federal officials said the Dighton track in three operating years paid a total of $227,520 on an investment of $4740, or $48 for every $1 of stock.

Half of the original number of 4740 shares were owned by a group headed by Edward J. O'Hare, slain in Chicago by gangsters. The government claims the other half of the stock is owned by associates of a former Bostonian identified with dog racing.

These, the government claims, failed to account in income tax returns for about $113,000 derived from dog racing in 1935 and 1936.

Among those heard by the grand jury so far are Alice Murphy, of Gallivan Blvd., Dorchester, a school teacher and former secretary of a track official, and Hugh C. Irey, special agent of the Internal Revenue Division of the Treasury Department.

Besides Duffy, others summoned are Walter T. Mason of South Boston; Joseph Driscoll, Brookline architect; Thomas J. Flynn of Dorchester and Charles McQuistin of Waltham. The latter two testified last week.

Quints to Show At Fair, Says LaGuardia, But

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (INS)—The Dionne quints are coming to the New York World's Fair, Mayor F. H. LaGuardia proudly announced today.

The mayor said he had been assured by Harvey D. Gibson, Fair chairman, that plans to place the five famous girls on exhibition had been completed.

But contradictory reports came from Canada in denials by Dr. Alan Roy Dafoe, the quins' physician; Oliva Dionne, their father; Percy Wilson, one of their guardians, and Keith Munro, their business manager.

Nevertheless, the mayor said it was his understanding a reproduction of the Dionne nursery will be constructed on the site of the razed Russian building. All receipts from admissions will be turned over to the Canadian Red Cross.

100,000 AT 'CONVICT' PARADE

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 12 (AP) — Gubernatorial candidates James H. Morrison's "convict parade" on broad Canal st. last night blocked downtown traffic for two hours and drew a Mardi Gras-like crowd of 100,000.

The greatest political throng in the history of Louisiana, jammed from store front to store front, chuckled, cheered and guffawed as it saw its leading state politicians caricatured in convict stripes.

Morrison, 31-year-old Hammond attorney, is one of four "reform" candidates trying to smash the old regime of the late Huey P. Long in the Democratic primary Tuesday. Seeking to continue the administration power is Gov. Earl K. Long, brother of Huey.

Many of the top lieutenants of the Long organization have been indicted in the federal and State scandal investigations, including former Gov. Richard W. Leche, Seymour Weiss and Abraham Shushan.

As the turbulent campaign neared a close grand juries and courts in many sections were busy continuing investigations and handling political litigation. O. John Rogge, Assistant U. S. Attorney-General, is in New Orleans. He announced that any election fraud would be prosecuted.

Seeking, with Morrison, to unseat Gov. Long are Sam Jones, Lake Charles attorney; State Senator James A. Noe and Vincent Moseley, Opelousas attorney.

Dr. Carrel Gets Post in France

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (INS)—Dr. Alexis Carrel, Nobel prize winner and member emeritus of Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, has been appointed to the staff of the French ministry of health for military medical research, it was learned today.

According to a Paris communication to the editor of Science, official organ of the American Ass'n for the Advancement of Science, Dr. Carrell is expected to remain on his new job for the duration of the war.

However, authentic sources in New York disclosed that Dr. Carrel desires to return to New York as soon as possible to continue scientific researches in which he has been engaged.

Greenfield Broker Is Held in $5000

GREENFIELD, Jan. 12—Arthur J. Flynn, 42, broker, was free on $5000 bail today following his arrest on a charge of stealing $1000 from a client. His arrest, which caused a stir here, climaxed a secret investigation by the Franklin County district attorney's office.

Flynn is a member of the local American Legion post and a former grand knight of the local Knights of Columbus Council. He also is a former N. E. A. A. U. boxing official and conducted the Columbus Day marathon here for many years. He is married and has two children.

Trooper Tells Why He Killed

MAUCH CHUNK, Pa., Jan. 12 (INS)—State Police Corp. Benjamin Franklin, namesake and descendant of the great early American statesman, scientist and philosopher, will tell a Carbon County jury today why he shot 14 year old Joan Stevens, the "doll girl," in a prowl car last June 5.

The husky, 33-year-old suspended trooper, who was named "Benjamin" in honor of his family's illustrious ancestor, was set to appear on the witness stand when court opened, Ben Brarch, chief defense counsel, announced.

Franklin, married and the father of two, will be the twelfth defense witness to be presented in the five days of his trial on second-degree murder charges.

Claiming self-defense, he has insisted he shot the Nesquehoning school girl as he and Private Edward Swatji were driving her in the car, because she threatened them with a toy pistol they thought at the time to be genuine.

The troopers had picked up the girl for questioning about a bank robbery scheme she claimed to have uncovered and was anxious to divulge to police.

Air Hostess To Wed Doctor

Blue-eyed Evelyn A. Hennessey, one of the most popular American Airline hostesses, admitted today that Dan Cupid had caught her on the wing and that "pretty soon" she's to marry Dr. Glen H. Gummess of Los Angeles, Cal.

The couple filed marriage intentions at City Hall and the pretty bride-to-be, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hennessey of Greenfield, was one of three girls selected last year by the airline officials as of "outstanding talent."

Dr. Gummess is at present at Boston City Hospital.

Miss Hennessey attended Simmons College, the nurses training school at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital and the New England Deaconess Hospital.

4 Unhurt as Auto Crashes Into Train

An auto crashed a lowered gate at the Winter st., Malden, grade crossing today, bounded against the locomotive of a passing freight and was tossed clear of the track.

The steps of the locomotive were broken, the car was badly smashed up but the four occupants, Frank J. Kaszynslei and his wife of Jones ave., Wilmington, Clarence Kinglet of Stoneham and Thomas Ryan of Medford, escaped with a slight shaking up.

Rip Saw Accident Fatal to Gardner Man

GARDNER, Jan. 12—Without regaining consciousness after an emergency operation had been made to save his life, Wallace Szablawa, 35, died at Henry Heywood Memorial hospital today. He had been at the hospital since Wednesday as result of an unusual accident. While operating a rip saw at the F. A. Nichols wood working plant the saw threw a block of wood which struck him in the head.

Yeah, They'll Do It, Too—Listen!

WORCESTER, Jan. 12 (AP)—A man walking down Main st. put his hand in his pocket and stopped suddenly.

CHARGES MATE GAVE CHILD LIQUOR, WINS DIVORCE

Mrs. Mildred D. Powell of Lebanon st., Melrose, had her second divorce from the same husband today on charges he fed their five-year-old son liquor and struck her when she remonstrated.

Two days after their remarriage the husband reverted to his old habit, the wife testified before Judge Arthur E. Beane in Middlesex Probate Court. She said she first married Powell in 1924, divorced him in 1936, but in 1938 remarried him for the sake of their child.

"He promised me he would be a different person, but he failed to keep his promise," Mrs Powell testified. "Two days after our remarriage he gave liquor to the baby. The child became intoxicated and could hardly stand on his feet. I couldn't bear it."

ELSIE ROBINSON writes the woman's viewpoint, discusses everyday affairs and problems regularly in the Boston American.

Garners Attend Roosevelt Fete

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Vice-President Garner, who hopes to sit in the host's place in the White House next year, dined at President Roosevelt's board.

The occasion was a dinner preceding the congressional reception. The Garners were at the head of the line of guests who were greeted by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt at the reception. As Garner passed Mr. Roosevelt's chair, he grasped both of the President's hands, grinning broadly, then Mrs. Roosevelt the same double handshake and kissed her hand.

GOP Opens Up 3rd Term Fight

Special to Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—House Republicans today fired the first gun of a carefully planned barrage against the third term, which will be continued until the eve of the national conventions, or until Mr. Roosevelt definitely eliminates himself as a candidate.

The President having refrained from declaring his intentions at the Jackson Day dinner, it will be Republican strategy to assume he [illegible] as a receptive candidate, and that the pre-convention campaign under way for his renomination by members of his cabinet is with his consent.

Today's attack was led by Rep. Jenkins of Ohio. He will be followed by other speakers in a line of attack which recognizes the so-called "adjournment of politics" which President Roosevelt called for at the opening of the special session of Congress was brought to a close by the partisan Democratic addresses delivered throughout the country on Jackson day.

"President Roosevelt," said Mr. Jenkins, "has divided his party by reason of his departure from the well-known policies of the Democratic party. His adherents call themselves New Dealers leaving the others to call themselves Jeffersonian Democrats. This cleavage is stronger in its animosities than the cleavage between Jeffersonian Democrats and Republicans."

Dewey to Speak Here on Jan. 23

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP)—Dist. Atty. Thomas E. Dewey, candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, will speak in Mechanics Hall, Boston, on Jan. 23, his campaign headquarters announced late today.

Death Claims 'Atom Baby'

GLOUCESTER, Jan. 11—Doctors lost a 3-day fight to save a mite of humanity today when the 24-ounce son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Adam died at the Addison Gilbert Hospital.

The "atom baby" was born to the 19-year-old mother, Mrs. Dorothea Adams on Tuesday and immediately placed in an incubator and kept alive with a specially designed feeder.

N. J. State Delegation Pledged to Dewey

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Jan. 12 (INS)—New Jersey's delegation to the Republican national convention was pledged today to Thomas E. Dewey—the first state delegation to line up openly for the New York district attorney in his campaign for the presidential nomination.

The pledge of the 22 delegates came out of a session of Republican leaders at the home of Joseph A. Bower in Montclair.

Jersey G. O. P. Backs Dewey

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Jan. 12 (AP)—New Jersey Republican party leaders decided today to unite their two warring factions behind Thomas E. Dewey of New York for the Republican presidential nomination.

By agreeing to elect Dewey-pledged delegates to the party's national convention, the New Jersey Republicans thus became the first state group in the nation to line up solidly behind the New York district attorney.

They remained as split as ever, however, on the question of a candidate for governor this year and virtually resigned themselves to a May primary fight for the nomination.

Present at a conference which broke up early today were former Governor Harold B. Hoffman head of one faction, and Arthur T. Vanderbilt, one of Dewey's 12 key advisors and leader of the "clean government" group. Hoffman's candidacy has been taken for granted although he has not officially announced he would run.

14 NLRB PORTIAS UNDER FIRE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (INS)—Investigation of duplication of employment wherein husbands and wives are each drawing federal pay was predicted today by a member of the Smith National Labor Relations Board investigating committee.

The prediction came as the committee heard from a parade of pretty young women, some with socialite backgrounds and educations at the most exclusive finishing schools and all employed by the board as review attorneys.

Records show that no fewer than 11 of these young Portias—most of them identified as having liberal views" and one as having "turned left"—are working for the board. All of them have been called to testify.

Of the first five who have been questioned so far, three are married and in each case friend husband is also a federal employe.

Miss Margaret Bennett—like their stage sisters, they retain their maiden names—is the wife of John W. Porter. She gets $4600 a year from the board and he gets $4200 as an attorney in the anti-trust division, Department of Justice.

Miss Bennett, a flashing brunette, is a graduate of Vassar.

Miss Anne Fleeting, 29, also a brunette who gets $3000 a year from the board, is the wife of Julius Schlezinger, a $3600-a-year employe in the wage-hour division of the Labor Department.

Miss Carolyn Agger, a blonde with close clipped hair, a graduate of Yale Law School, is the wife of Abe Fortas, general counsel for the bituminous coal division, Department of the Interior.

fishing work instead of waiting to be brought out. The explosion occurred less than an hour before the day shift was scheduled to go off duty.

Hope of finding some of the men alive brightened early today when weary workers finally dug into a right entry, finding diner buckets and machines where an estimated 30 men had been working. Belief was expressed that the men had made their way to another section and successfully barricaded themselves against gas but these hopes were dashed with the finding of the 32 bodies in a passageway leading off from the entry.

The bodies were approximately 800 feet from the shaft and some 2400 feet away from another group of workers that might be alive.

Company officials estimated it would be early afternoon before other trapped men could be

Morris was arrested at a New Year's fishing party at Nelson. Morris said he did not realize he was guilty of an infraction of regulations.

Crippled Exeter Is Reported Sunk

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 12 (INS)—There was a persistent rumor that the British cruiser Exeter, riddled with shot in the naval battle with the Nazi pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee, had foundered in the south Atlantic off Bahia Blanca, Brazil.

The newspaper Pampero, declared the warship sank 80 miles of the Brazilian coast while en route to the British naval base at the Falkland Islands.

(There was no confirmation of the sinking in London. Berlin newspapers unanimously gave front page space to the Pampero story, the Allgemeine Zeitung pointing out that First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill "some time ago declared in the House of Commons that naval losses are being kept secret for military reasons, and losses will be reported only when secrecy no longer is maintainable.")

The Exeter was last seen by Argentine observers two weeks ago, steaming slowly at six knots and drawing considerably more water than she should. She was obviously badly crippled as a result of her battle with the Graf Spee, and was accompanied by the huge French battleship Dunquerque. If she did sink, it is presumed the Dunquerque rescued the British crew.

It also was reported—without confirmation—that the British freighter Highland Patriot, accompanied by the cruiser Achilles, fought a battle with a German sea raider off Santos. The Highland Patriot, now due at Montevideo had not arrived, adding strength to the rumor.

Current reports of an impending naval engagement in the south Atlantic for the purpose of freeing the German merchantmen now bottled up in South American harbors were ridiculed by a high Argentine naval official.

This officer pointed out that it is absolutely impossible for the Nazis to concentrate a sufficient naval force in this region equalling the Franco-British strength. The allies have the aircraft carrier Ark Royal, the cruisers Renown, Cumberland, Ajax, Achilles, two or three other cruisers of the Cumberland class and numerous auxiliary vessels as well as the powerful modern Dunquerque. At best the Germans could not muster a fleet of much more than the pocket battleship Admiral Scheer, several submarines and perhaps a few armed merchantmen.

At the moment there are approximately 16 German merchant ships bottled up in Brazilian harbors, eight at Montevideo and four at Buenos Aires.

Nazis Report Four More Ships Sunk

BERLIN, Jan. 12 (AP)—The German air force reported today it had sunk four more British ships and warded off a British air raid on an unidentified German island yesterday.

The German high command communique reporting the action said:

"On the Western front, local artillery and scouting activity.

"The air force continued reconnaissance of the English and Scottish east coasts and the Shetlands. On the Scottish coast, three British patrol boats and one armed merchant steamer which fired on German planes were attacked and sunk.

"In the course of a developing air fight with British pursuit craft, one enemy plane was shot down. Two British planes attacked an air base on one German island without causing damage."

(The British reported that German fliers had attacked one merchant ship and three trawlers yesterday but did not specify whether they were sunk.)

Jap Cabinet To Quit Sunday

TOKYO, Jan. 12 (AP)—Premier Gen. Nobuyuki Abe announced today that he would resign Sunday, bearing out predictions that his government would fail if the United States failed to react favorably to Japanese proposals for reopening the lower Yangtze to third power trade.

The entire cabinet was expected to resign and there were indications a "stop-gap" cabinet would be chosen because of the inability of military and civilian factions to agree on a strong premier.

Sources close to the government, however, said that Foreign Minister Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura might be reappointed because of the progress he is considered to have made toward improving Japan's relations with the United States. Nomura, a former Japanese naval attache at Washington, has many American friends.

Abe announced he would file his resignation at a special cabinet meeting Sunday morning.

once, and will be completed before a similar division, sent on a rescue mission, can arrive.

In a former case in the same area, rescue reinforcements themselves were drawn into the Finnish net and wiped out, and it was believed that the new division hastening westward from Kandalaksha would meet a similar fate.

Weighing two theories, one that the Russians are giving up all attempts at major offensives until spring, the other that the Soviets, directed personally by Joser Stalin, have been ordered to press on regardless of the cost, military observers leaned to the latter opinion.

The assaults in the Petsamo region and the dispatch of Soviet reinforcements to the Salla area tended to show that the "Stalin offensive" theory was correct.

SKI TROOPS BUSY

Amid the broader campaigns at Petsamo, Salla and Lake Ladoga darting Finnish ski patrols continued to harass Soviet lines of communication, slashing deep into Soviet territory and cutting off detachments from vital connections.

Among the 1500 prisoners on the Suomusalmi front were many nurses and women interpreters, who have been put to work caring for the Russian wounded in Finnish hospitals.

Trapped Nazi Plane Is Sunk

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 12 (INS)—A German aviation crew of four men brought their big bombing plane to an emergency landing at Skaerback, South Jutland, then scuttled their craft by fire before Danish authorities could seize it.

The German aviators were interned. It was believed they burned their plane in order to prevent the Danes from acquiring the craft's log and technical secrets

Nazi Bomber Flies Over London Area

Another vessel picked up the Granta's crew.

It was disclosed today that during yesterday's raid by German planes the 1706-ton British steamer Keynes was bombed and sunk in the North sea. One of the Nazi raiders scored five direct hits.

Seventeen members of the crew were landed safely.

(A German communique said three British patrol vessels and one armed merchantman which opened fire on reconnoitering German planes were bombed and sunk, and one British plane was shot down in aerial combat.)

French Down 3 Nazi Planes Over West Wall

PARIS, Jan. 12 (AP)—French reports asserted that three German planes had been brought down on the Western Front in the past two days in a series of air encounters which continued today in the coldest weather of the winter.

One of the planes was reported brought down inside the French lines yesterday in spite of the fact that the Germans are protecting most of their reconnaissance ships with fighters.

There has been heavy artillery fire at various points of the front during the last 24 hours, with some patrol action.

Finns Slay Reds Landing by Chute

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 12 (AP)—Finnish marksmen were reported today to have picked off groups of Soviet Russian troops in the air as they attempted to land by parachute from planes behind the Finnish lines on the Karelian Isthmus.

The Stockholm newspaper Tidningen said several groups of 50 men in parachutes were "virtually annihilated" as they floated to earth.

Some Finnish riflemen shot the descending troops, while they still were in the air and others were quickly rounded up after landing, the paper said.

1100 U. S. Horses Start Trip to France

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 12 (AP)—Future mounts for French soldiers, 1100 horses from the western plains were loaded on two French freighters today for the second leg of their journey to Europe's western front.

Purchase of the horses was arranged by the French military commission at St. Louis and the animals arrived here three days ago.

zero temperatures the Russian troops encountered in the campaign against Finland.)

The personnel of many departments of the Soviet government has suffered in the purge, it was reported, 46 persons having been removed from the aviation ministry alone.

These were headed by Mikhail M. Kaganovitch, long one of Stalin's most trusted aides, who was removed as commissar for the aviation industry. Many other persons in the Soviet armament and industrial industries have been "liquidated," the impression being that large numbers have been shot to death.

USES FOREIGN PLANES

In this connection, Finnish authorities have been quoted as saying that all Soviet airplanes forced down in Finland were found to have been of foreign manufacture. Russia is known to have possessed a total of from 400 to 500 foreign airplanes only, and approximately half of this number have been destroyed the Finns.

Russian prisoners were reported to have said that Soviet-made planes were unsuited to strenuous winter warfare. Inability to use the thousands of Russian airplanes made in the Soviet Union was cited as the reason for Russia's failure to carry out large-scale air attacks upon Finland.

Stalin ordered the cleanup when he learned of the deficiences in the airforce, it was reported.

trip. Business. He went to Worcester, all right, but there, on last Dec. 20, he married the Ojanen girl again," she said.

How well this latest arrangement went with the first Mrs. Baker is illustrated in the final episode of the story.

She marched into Leominster district court, told the clerk her story, and swore out a warrant against her missing husband charging him with bigamy.

Capt. Francis W. Farwell of Leominster police raced to Boston airport with the warrant after Mrs. Baker told him her husband planned to fly to South America with his young bride.

With Boston police, the officer waited at the airport, and waited and waited. There was no sign of Mr. Baker or his beautiful, twice-wed bride.

When Mrs. Baker got her Reno divorce, she had been living in Green st., Clinton. At that time she was superintendent of the First Unitarian Church Sunday School, member of the Women's Alliance the Clinton Women's Club, and the Clinton Historical Society and had directed many amateur dramatic productions presented in Clinton.

When she lived in Quincy she was a member of the City Federation of Women's Clubs and the Women's Club of Wollaston.

Baker, besides being vice-president, is also treasurer of the Colonial Press, Inc., at Clinton, third largest bookbinding concern in the nation, and the scene, in April and May, 1937, of many bitter labor disputes.

At one time Pres. Lewis M. Adams of the company said he "was so sick and tired of riot-ing," he was going to move the plant to New York. The annual payroll is about $500,000.

Police said today search for Baker would be enlarged.

GIRL FEARED DYING IN 4-STORY PLUNGE

Plunging four stories from her bedroom window to the sidewalk, Alma Crowell, 17, pretty Dudley st., Roxbury, waitress, today suffered injuries doctors feared may be fatal.

She was found unconscious on the pavement by William Welch, a next door neighbor on his way to work. Welch summoned help and the girl was taken to City Hospital.

She suffered a fractured skull and other serious injuries. She did not recover consciousness and her name was placed on the danger list.

Police went to her home and questioned her mother, who was near collapse. The girl had been living with her mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Galvin, at the Dudley st. address. She had been working at a Harvard sq., Cambridge, restaurant.

Mrs. Galvin said her daughter had been sick for a few days and unable to work. This morning she got out of bed hoping she would be well enough to work, but after being up for a short while, her mother told her she had better not try to go out today.

The girl went back to her room. A short while later her mother heard a scream. She rushed to the room and found the window wide open. Below on the sidewalk Welch was just discovering the girl.

Mrs. Galvin said Miss Crowell had been suffering from dizzy spells. She believes the girl lost her balance when she re-opened her window after deciding to return to bed. She said the girl had been taking sleeping tablets and they may have affected her this morning.

DAMON RUNYON'S
The Brighter Side

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.
Distributed by International News Service

The American Research Bureau, of 527 Ninth st., N. W., Washington, D. C., advises us by post card that we may have two copies of a history of the Runyon family for one dollar, cash money.

As the card speaks of "our staff of genealogical researchers," we judge that the A. R. B. makes a business of accumulations of th.t nature. Probably by now members of many proud families have been similarly canvassed on these liberal terms.

Anyway, on receipt of the card we hurried down to McAleenan's loan office and drew the debonnaire Major Alvin McAleenan off into a corner and inquired in a confidential whisper:

"Maje, what are you advancing today on family histories?"

The major, in a whisper equally confidential, replied:

"Sir, today, or any other day, we are advancing exactly double nothing on family histories. In fact we will give you one of the McAleenan family free of charge, if you pay the cartage."

So we are not going to take advantage of the A. R. B.'s offer. Anything we cannot get something on at McAleenan's has no value to us.

Besides, we are not sure that we like the idea of any considerable circulation of the Runyon family history with reference to our own branch.

It might fall into the hands of the well dressed Mr. Maury Paul, alias Cholly Knickerbocker, and furnish him with fodder for one of his famous "tragedies of society," as for instance the unfortunate happen-stance that was the social undoing of our great-uncle Ted, just as he had established footing in the sacred inner circle of the upper crust of Trail City.

That was long years ago when Trail City was a bustling frontier place near the Kansas-Colorado line and the society ladies held a sociable to raise funds for some local charitable enterprise. Among other inducements they had games of chance, a form of money-raising for charity that has its equivalent in the Bingo of today. They had a roulette wheel, and a chuck-a-luck layout and a dice game and other diversions, the paraphernalia for which was loaned them by a public spirited gambler, with the leading society ladies of the town presiding over them. They were using silver dollars instead of chips, that being the accepted form of currency in those days out West.

Great-Uncle Ted was a bit of a social climber and he was quite jubilant over the fact that he was favored with an invitation to the soiree.

For a time our Great-Uncle Ted lost, and then he suddenly began winning. He threw so many sevens and elevens and made so many points with the dice that he won the game's entire bankroll. He had a barrier of silver dollars in front of him that a greyhound could not have hurdled. The lady in charge of the table sent around to the other games and got more dollars but Great-Uncle Ted won them, too.

He won all the money in the house and that was enough to fill all his pockets with silver dollars and the inside of his shirt bosom and both the legs of his trousers. He tied strings around the lower ends of his trousers at his shoe tops so the dollars would not leak out. Then when he got ready to leave he picked up the dice he had been using and said he guessed he would take them as souvenirs, but when he pushed them in a pocket that little extra weight was just enough to cause his suspenders to break and his trousers to fall off.

Naturally this immodest display shocked all the ladies present and our Great Uncle Ted not only lost all social standing in Trail City, but never recovered many of the silver dollars that sped like white mice all over the joint on the instant of their releasing.

If he had not taken on the extra weight of those dice he would have been all right, yet if he had left the dice there they might have been examined and it would have been disclosed that they were Great-Uncle Ted's own dice and that they could not contrive anything but winning numbers and this would have been considered a social faux pas, too.

WALSH, LODGE AID FINN FUND

The list of sponsors for the Massachusetts branch of the Finnish Relief Fund was completed today with the addition of the names of Sens. Walsh and Lodge and former Gov. Fuller.

Contributions intended for medical and hospital relief in Finland should be given to the American Red Cross, according to a statement by H. J. Procope, minister of Finland, made public here by Harvey H. Bundy, Massachusetts fund chairman.

"The Red Cross is actively conducting medical relief in Finland and elsewhere as in the past," the statement said. "Its headquarters are in Washington, with chapters or branches in virtually all cities.

"Gifts of clothing and other material donations will be gratefully accepted at the Finnish Consulate General, 44 Whitehall st., New York, and shipped without further charge."

Nearly all Finnish refugees are suffering from lack of sufficient warn clothing in the bitter zero weather of their homeland, where local charitable funds are exhausted in many communities.

Contributions to the Finnish Relief Fund are still being received by the Daily Record, Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser. Send your contribution to Finnish Relief Editor, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. All contributions will be promptly acknowledged and forwarded.

Modern Glamour Girls -:- By George Clarke

". . . and so they come to judgment! . . ."

TIME WAS WHEN Chic Farmer's sole claim to distinction was that he was the only radio singer in and around New York who could yodel "The St. Louis Blues"—and yodel 'em he did, high wide and handsome, at the drop of a hat . . . and he'd drop the hat!

Nor did any one think then the time would come—and all within a few years—when he would be the stream-lined Ward McAllister of the present day, sitting in judgement on the charm and love lines of all the bright little debutantes in the gayest city in all the world, New York. Chief Justice, no less, in the Court of Glamour! . . . But that's what happened.

He it is who, each year, guides and directs the streams of pictures and publicity which, inevitably, finally focus up one hopeful little girl, and she becomes the Glamour Girl of the Year.

So it was last year with Brenda Frazier; so it is this year with Mary Steele . . . and Chic's ma, back in Oklahoma, must get quite a kick out of it.

To understand how a farm boy, from the great open spaces, could find himself in such a strange position, one must understand the screwy pattern of life in New York's "Cafe Society."

It began at El Morocco, with a sparkling-eyed, brunette youngster by the name of Jerome Zerbe, who came from Cleveland, O., with a Brownie camera and an ambition to photograph the socially-elect.

He had an engaging personality and a charming smile, and the socially-elect have very little objection to being photographed, so presently he had become almost a tradition . . . so much so that nowadays in that same "Cafe Society" Zerbe speaks only to Lucius Beebe, another outlander from Wakefield, Mass., and Beebe reputedly speaks only to Elsa Maxwell. At least that's the way it was before Chic Farmer came along.

Chic was on the radio, we knew here and there, and playing endless benefits when Sherman Billingsley, owner of the Stork Club, determined to do something about the candid camera craze, then packing El Morocco, the rival establishment. At the Morocco on those days, a year or so ago, it was difficult to walk around because of all of the camera addicts trying odd shots of the socially great from the floor, from behind chairs, and, if they could have done it, from the ceiling.

So he hired Chic Farmer, bought him a camera, newspaper-type, with flashlight and all, and turned him loose.

CHIC is a nice fellow and a ready mixer. He soon began to pile up an imposing stack of negatives in his washroom-darkroom upstairs. He must now have at least 10,000, depicting the charming and surprised smiles of almost everyone of New York's society set.

And then came Gloria Baker!

The young sister of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, the young horseman, was so lovely! . . . and Chic's camera lens wore itself out almost in trying to make still more beautiful pictures of her. The pictures went to the editors of all New York papers with a little "Stork Club copyright." Nobody was ever able to figure out just how the Stork Club assumed the right to copyright her photograph, but there the pictures were, and they were free, so the little credit line began to appear more and more frequently. A phoney gin bottle was even rigged up, with a white stork on a black label so if, by chance, the credit line was left off, the Stork Club still appeared. The trademark of the El Morocco pictures for years was the zebra skin upholstery, which told its own story.

BRENDA FRAZIER
Glamour Girl of Last Year

MARY STEELE
Named as This Year's Glamour Girl

Another element was that Gloria Baker, the daughter of Mrs. Margaret Emerson-Vanderbilt-Baker and Raymond T. Baker, once Comptroller of Federal currency, was willing to pose for Chic and was shy with others. She is now, incidentally, Mrs. Dan Topping, Jr., and has recently been in the papers over the hearing of a suit against her young husband by the detective who won him a divorce from the former Jayne Shattuck, actress.

Although not so labelled, Gloria was the first Glamour Girl of the year, and, the year after, it was a cinch for Chic to build Brenda Frazier into a similar position of eminence.

Brenda, now frequently seen with society-cartoonist, Peter Arno, reaped the harvest sown in Gloria's behalf. This time the editors needed no urging, and her career was climaxed by a picture series in a national magazine, devoted to pictures exclusively.

She is faced with a curious dilemma, incidentally, the choice between acceptance of an $8,000,000 estate, left her by her father, the late Frank Duff Frazier, or a $12,000,000 estate left by her late stepfather, Fredetic N. Wattiss. The estate from her father was left to her provided she didn't live with her mother. This "spite clause" was thrown out by the courts.

The $12,000,000 will be hers if she renounces the $8,000,000 . . . What a dilemma!

At the end of her year's reign, only a few weeks ago, the unbeatable Chic offered as his choice for the year a girl who is almost Brenda's double, lovely Mary Steele. Bradshaw Crandall, the artist, seconded her nomination, and she was finally elected by the debbies, themselves her rivals, receiving 70 votes to some 30 for her nearest rival.

She is a daughter of Mrs. John Nelson Steele, and her late father was a son of John Steele, copper magnate and prominent Baltimore and New York lawyer. Her social position is of the best, and, in addition, she plays and sings very well. She would like nothing better than a career on the stage, and, last summer, appeared for a brief time with a Rhode Island stock company.

Her favorite escort, by the way, is Herdon ("Don") Robertson, who played for a time with Orson Welles "Five Kings," and is now a student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. They are frequently seen together in the Stork Club, where Chic lurks with his ever-so-willing camera.

AND so it goes with next year's glamour girl No. 1 practically chosen already. She probably will be little Gloria Vanderbilt, daughter of the late Reggie Vanderbilt and the glamorous Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, one of the three glamorous Morgan sisters already celebrated in this series.

The nearest thing in Boston to the Stork Club is, probably, the Zero Hereford room of the ox and Hounds, presided over by a musical Chic Farmer named Al Zimmerman. He might very readily assume a Chic Farmer role, and, when he reads this, he probably will. Others who could qualify are also maestros, Harry Marshaid, who swings a baton at the Balinese room at the Somerset, and his brother, Jack, head of the Marshard interests. Then, of course, there is Sammy Eisen, who might be best at it of all and his boss and partner, Ruby Newman. Lew Bonnick wouldn't be bad.

And although there is no actual Chic Farmer here we will make an effort to learn what are the references of these gentlemen in the matter for Monday's story in this series.

In the meantime . . .

(Two Boston Glamour girls—Francesca Braggiotti and Clarissa Curtis—will be described in tomorrow's Evening American. The swath they cut in social circles, and what has become of them.)

Grandmother at 33 . . . With Son, 17, a Father

One Year to 33—Meet Mrs. Lewis Chapman of Brockton . . . probably the youngest grandmother in the state. She's 33, mother of nine children, with eight still at home . . . seven shown here with her . . . the twins, Melvyn and Merton, and (l. to r.) Gloria, Marguerite, David, Virginia and George.

She's 33 years old, matronly, pretty—and she's a grandmother!

That's Mrs. Lewis Chapman of Jackson st., Brockton, whose eldest son, Lewis, was married last February in a much publicized "child romance," and who, just recently, at the age of 17, became a father.

According to Mrs. Chapman by her figuring that makes her a grandmother.

"If that doesn't seem unusual enough," she said, "why—I myself had twins only a few weeks ago. That makes a total of nine children. And—don't forget—one grandchild."

The eight youngsters still at home are quite a handful, attractive Mrs. Chapman admits, what with her husband in the hospital, and—she needs a baby carriage for the twins.

"I've had a regular baby carriage," she explained. "But the twins were sort of—well, surprise. If anyone knows where there is a twin baby carriage, I'd like to get it."

Of the children at home, one wants to be an aviator, one a fireman, another a policeman.

Lewis, now working for a Boston advertising firm, was married last February to 16-year-old Millicent MacLeod, when both were students at the Oliver Ames High School.

ONE OF THE FEW good things that have come of the Russian invasion of Finland is the disappearance of the last vestige of American illusion about the "peaceful" aims of Communism.

Until this wanton act of brutality was committed against Finland a few misguided Americans, including a scattering of liberals and Socialists, pictured the so-called Soviet Russian "Union of Socialist Republics" as akin to democracy, and its ruthless dictator, Stalin, as an exponent of democratic principles.

The Finnish exploit has made their disillusionment complete.

Any Americans who support or apologize for Stalin now must do so with full knowledge and acceptance of the tyrannical processes which are the character and essence of Communism.

The refusal of sincere American liberals and Socialists to do this is almost universal.

And for a vigorous phrasing of the language of condemnation, the recent scourging of Stalin by Norman Thomas, three times a Socialist candidate for President of the United States, was a classic.

Speaking in Baltimore, Mr. Thomas, who has always bitterly opposed Communism, said the Soviet invasion of Finland was "a perversion of every decent thing in Socialism."

AS FINNISH MOTHERS AND BABIES FLEE BOMBS
Americans See Russian Communism in All Its Bestiality

He called Josef Stalin "guilty of a despicable and abominable aggression, more to be cursed than any action in history."

He declared that the Communist Russian crime against Finland "makes hypocrites and liars of all Communists who bleated of Russia's peaceful policy."

This language, strong as it is, is still entirely inadequate to express the loathing of decent Americans for all that Stalin and his bloody Communist regime represent.

Undoubtedly the most thoroughly discredited political, social and economic philosophy in all history, Communism stands today steeped in its own despicable and abominable acts, condemned and excoriated by Americans of all degree.

WE CAN ONLY WONDER now that such a hateful thing should ever have had even the slightest acceptance in the United States.

It is a shame and a disgrace for which we should bow our heads that we have tolerated and coddled its agents, and let them spread their poisonous doctrines in American schools and churches, and given them the freedom of our platform and press, and even accorded them the privilege of flaunting their treacherous and traitorous organization as a pretended American political party.

There has never been any excuse for Americans to misunderstand Communism.

It has always been contemptuous of our American democracy and has always villified our American institutions and ideals and has always been a stench to loyal and law-abiding Americans.

Why any Americans had to wait for the rape of Finland to be convinced is an amazing reflection on their intelligence and patriotism.

But now at least the last excuse is gone.

There is no place for Communism in America.

It is impossible for the Communist Party further to masquerade as an American political party.

It is impossible to be Communistic and BE AMERICAN.

HEALTHY MASSACHUSETTS becomes healthier. Our people are living longer and escaping the diseases that used to claim thousands of young lives.

Only one case of sleeping sickness was reported to the State Public Health Department during the past year.

Infantile paralysis was reduced to the record low of 76.

And, except for periodic outbreaks of measles, there were practically no epidemics.

Disease-prevention education and prompt, efficient care at the beginning of illness are paying dividends.

No longer do we have to fear maladies like smallpox, which in the year 1752 infected more than 50 per cent of Boston's population and caused the city to be almost completely evacuated.

Gingerbread Man

WELL, what do you think of our gingerbread man? . . . He has raisins for eyes, mouth and nose . . . and he's just come all spicy and warm from the pan . . . with raisins to button his clothes.

And doesn't he look gay and jovial, though . . . with his honest and frank raisin eyes! . . . You can tell from his mouth that he's saying "Hello!" . . . for he knows he's a pleasant surprise.

Now, a gingerbread man may be quite good to eat . . . but to eat him would be most unkind . . . For inside of him tucked—it's what makes him so sweet—a plump raisin heart you will find.

Human Side of News -:- By EDWIN C. HILL

OUR PRICE of admission to the World War was $10,595,490,390 and we didn't get a rain check. That, however, was merely our loans to the Allies, which may now be written down as permanent investments.

Our dizzy write-up of the national debt, our payment in lives, the disruption of our national economy, from which the depression was a delayed reaction, made our idealistic binge probably the most costly venture of its kind in history.

The above "I'addition" is from the appendix of H. C. Peterson's new book, "Propaganda for War," published by the University of Oklahoma Press. It seemed to me it should have been out in front, rather than at the back of the book.

It herds together at the point of a sharp pencil some salutary thoughts about the high cost of war—and war comes much higher these days than it did then.

MR. PETERSON is a professor of history at the above university. His book summarizes years of scholarly research covering the efforts of both Germany and the Allies to rope and hog-tie American public opinion and get us into the war.

DEATH IN 1917
A Propaganda Victim?

Every essential argument wears a badge of authority in the form of an official document. It is a detached and studious report of the overt drive against our free opinion.

At this hour, when the West-wall stalemate provides evidence that this is primarily a political war; at this hour when propaganda is vastly more refined, skilled and intensified than it was 25 years ago, it is as timely as any bulletin from the war front.

It is a primer for the run-of-the-mill American who wants to make up his own mind about whether we ought to get into this war.

PERSONALLY, I believe there is abroad in our country a wholesome skepticism about "power-politics and its propaganda." We have learned a lot. It is quite possible that many or most of us may incline to the side of the Allies in the present war.

There are indications that Britain and France have learned something, too, and that they are not putting on the heat over here as they did in the years from 1914 to 1917.

But that they did put on the heat in those earlier years is the indisputable evidence of Professor Peterson's book—as did the Germans, but with less skill and effectiveness.

Considering the later manifestations of the German yen for world domination, there will be those who will insist that we Americans would be heiling and goose-stepping if the British hadn't made up our mind for us.

That is wide-open opinion not necessarily conditioned by Professor Peterson's showing that the British prescribed thought and action for us from 1914 on, and his story of how they did it.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- -:- MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—We had a charming program at the musical here. Mr. Webster Aitken played, among other things, a group by Schubert which delighted my soul. Miss Angna Enters did four character sketches which were clever and gave everybody a great deal of pleasure.

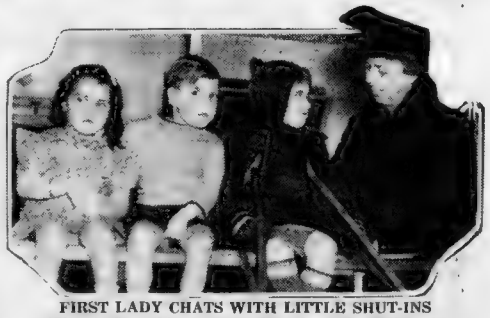
Later, I went to see "Three After Three," a new musical comedy which boasts a number of movie stars in the cast. All of them are charming and I had a thoroughly enjoyable evening.

Wednesday morning I went up to the Children's Hospital to see their infantile paralysis clinic. There's something remarkable about the philosophy children develop in the face of pain. Even when they are nearly well, they have to show so much character to finally overcome their handicap.

One little boy, who looked entirely normal, told me he had to do exercises with his arm every day because he couldn't throw a ball.

I told him that if he kept at it steadily, some day he would find that the power was there, but what I didn't tell him was that the character he would develop by sticking to those daily exercises would serve him better in after life than almost anything acquired in school.

YESTERDAY, I was sent some of the work being done in California on the "American Book of Design." The drawings are among the most beautiful I have seen.



FIRST LADY CHATS WITH LITTLE SHUT-INS
"There's Something Remarkable About the Philosophy Children Develop . . ."

When this work is complete, it will be, for students in many lines, one of the most valuable pieces of work which the WPA has accomplished.

In addition to this, a full-blooded Kiowa Indian woman from Oklahoma, working in the Indian "arts and crafts project, made and sent me a most beautiful bag. She tanned the white buckskin and did the beading, and the design and colors are authentic in her tribe. I shall use it with the greatest of pleasure.

It is interesting that this tanning should have been one of the early Indian arts, for a gentleman in New York City wrote me the other day that one of the lacks in his trade was young men who would take a practical course in tanning. There were plenty of openings and the need for young men with that skill could not at present be filled.

SINCE I am telling you about the interesting things which have come to me within the last few days, I should mention that two of my correspondents have sent me a book for children which they hope to get published in this country. They were natives of Czechoslovakia and are now becoming American citizens.

One of them has done the illustrations, and both story and pictures are delightful. It will, I think, prove very interesting to young readers, besides giving them a picture of life in a Czechoslovakian village.

CONSONANTS WORRY LAUGHTON

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 Charles Laughton, who will make a personal-appearance tour, in each theater will recite the Gettysburg Address . . . When he recited that speech at the Radio City Music Hall—at the premiere of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame"—Laughton told one of the Music Hall officials: "This is an awfully large theater, awfully large" . . . "Don't worry," he was assured, "The picture will pack 'em in" . . . "Oh. I didn't mean that," said Laughton. "I mean, in my speech—was every consonant clear?"

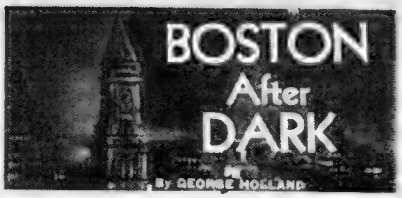
Herbert Hoover's committee plans to have a Finnish Relief Day in every school room in America, asking every student to contribute one penny for each member of the family . . . The words he's been saying are: "See that audience out there? They're going to take you and Horst and that guy speaking and throw all of you into the East River" . . . Howard Lindsay knew he was present, and, mindful of the movie sale, spoke his lines with the sudden realization that many portions of this great American play were unsuitable for the screen . . . But Sam Goldwyn, butt of countless movie jokes, came backstage later and, except for calling it "How to Live With Father," showed them exactly how he'd change the story for a perfect film.



THE POSTMAN RINGS TWICE. (In which two injustices are corrected.) "I've been reading your column for the past five years and I think it's pretty good. But there is always one mistake you make; you never give Boston dancers a break . . . All we read about now is New York steps—the samba, the conga, the rhumba . . . May I ask have you ever heard of the 'Boston Collegiate'? . . . It is positively the hardest and smoothest type of ballroom dancing to do . . . But you evidently do not appreciate the way Boston dances . . . Even our jitterbugs are smoother and better than any you will find in New York or any other city in the country?

"WHY DON'T YOU GIVE THE BOSTON kids a break? Boost Boston dancing . . . Guy Lombardo's music, your favorite band, is a typical 'collegiate' band . . . THIS WOULD BE a boon for many citizens, including yours truly . . . Many of us are bored a bit with the conga, the rhumba and the samba—which isn't really new, but is a Latin-American dance which failed to catch on when it was introduced a couple of years ago in New York . . . DAVID NIVEN JOINS BRITISH ARMY

By Louella O. Parsons

David Niven

CHICAGO, Jan. 12 After weeks of silence the official notice comes from London that David Niven has joined the English army and is now awaiting orders that will take him to his regiment, the Highland Light Infantry in France. This news should quiet the sceptics who were sure that David would be back in Hollywood before you could say "blitzkrieg" to make another picture immediately for Sam Goldwyn. In fact his own studio had cause to believe the English actor would be back following the official army announcement that England did not plan to recruit actors for immediate service.

This means that "The Return of Raffles," a sequel to the current thriller, which was completely prepared and ready to shoot, will be shelved. Even those closest to David, I believe, reckoned without his determination to serve his country. He tried to join the British expeditionary forces directly in France but when he was rebuffed he went on to London and wouldn't take "no" for an answer until they accepted him in his old regiment.

HEDY LAMARR

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD AND CHICAGO: Gene Raymond, bothered by his throat for a long time, checks into the Cedars of Lebanon today for a tonsilectomy; Lupe Velez's new interest is Brandy Brent; everybody at the Bali thought Pat Dane, Rudy Vallee's girl friend, looked just like Hedy Lamarr until Hedy herself walked in with Gene Markey; Ernest Byfield and Frank Bering were hosts at one of the most elaborate dinners given since we started our tour, in the Pump Room of the Ambassador. The chef outdid himself and I am bringing home some of his recipes to spring on my friends. Mrs. Bering, who was a former actress, is very pretty and she assisted her husband and Mr. Byfield in entertaining us. We all went back to the theater too well fed for comfort.

WELL, TODAY ends our tour and I am leaving in a few hours for home, carrying with me grateful remembrances of Chicago. What a heart-warming reception we have had. The Dixon papers have gone to town for Ronald Reagan as well as for yours truly, who graduated from the Dixon High School (in different years, of course.) Lolita and Ardo, the wonderful dancers we saw in San Francisco have been signed for Earl Carroll's Hollywood revue and they were nice enough to wire me that a mention in this column got them the opportunity.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

THE OLD MAN sat alone. Logs crackled in the fireplace. He mused. Shadows danced on the wall, shadows of men . . . of men he as district attorney had many years ago sent away to die or lie in cold, gray jails . . . men who'd screamed vengeance. They were free now, some of them; this gun in his side pocket—he patted it—maybe never need it; still, it could happen.

A figure appeared by his chair. "You rang, sir?"

"Jenkins, how long has that ad been in the papers?"

"Almost two years now, sir, it's ."

"Have it discontinued, Jenkins. That's all."

"Very good, sir."

Two years, h-mmm. No sense to it, of course, but it was lonesome.

VOICES sounded in the hall, loud, asking, refusing, demanding, despairing. A scuffle. Something clattered down the steps. The door slammed, locked.

The old man rose and looked toward the doorway where a disheveled Jenkins reported, "An old tramp, sir. Wanted to see you. He's gone," significantly.

"So, I heard. Very well, you may go."

Someone looking for him? A hobo, a wandering cast-off, a—wait! No, it couldn't be Tim, his younger brother. He'd prosecuted Tim; sent him to prison. Duty, of course. But no word came. His efforts to find him—nothing.

That ad. A copy in his pocket. Groping fingers contacted steel. A new thought came. Those others he'd convicted; now free.

His anger blazed. New thoughts fed fuel to the fire. Looking for him, eh? The sneaking jackals. Well, he wasn't afraid of them. If they wanted to fight, he'd fight them. Gutter scum, political crooks, leeches, murderers. Creeping up on him with their cold, clammy claws he stopped!

A RUSH of frosty air cooled his back. Night air. There was a window directly opposite the doorway which he still faced, hand in pocket.

Someone had opened that window . . . was in the room . . . had him trapped!

No! Heaven, no!

Gun flaming, he whirled. A ragged form toppled, fell. Something white fluttered from now nerveless fingers.

The old man disdaining the huddled body picked up the paper; a clipping of his ad!

A moment's shock. Then, unbelieving, mad with grief, he turned his victim over.

A soul shattering sob! The half-open eyes of the dead man stared at him accusing.

It was Tim.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

EACH [illegible] has a God. And each man's [illegible] is as big as that man's own vision [illegible] desire.

A black p[illegible] in the African jungles made a bund[illegible] straw and sticks, and calls it God. [illegible] a small bundle and it is a small God. [illegible] it fits the pygmy's vision and desire. [illegible] does not see God or life in the la[illegible] He comprehends nothing of its beau[illegible]nd wonder and tremendous power.

Life to him is a goo[illegible]e to climb, a safe cave to hide in, a [illegible]rous swamp to ford. Sunsets are w[illegible]d on him. And if his stomach is fu[illegible]e should worry about his soul!

Food, a warm bed, safety, enemies and wild beasts—that is all. His bundle of sticks and straw is a very accurate measure of his spiritual needs. He wouldn't know what to do with a more subtle or a more magnified God.

BUT the God of a great poet or prophet looms taller than the stars. Each man's God is as big as that man's own vision and need.

What do you really want out of life?

Can you write a short story? Send it to Two-Minute Story Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston. Five dollars will be paid for week's best story.

What are you honestly interested in? There's the size of your God.

Most of us can find all the God we want in any good department store

But, just catch us admitting that fact! With our last gasp we will protest that we require all the God there is, and then some!

There is, of course, a God beyond our petty imagination—the source of all life - the Alpha and Omega.

But He isn't your God nor mine—only as much of Him as we can understand and earn is your God and mine. And comprehending is a hard job

YOU DON'T get God for nothing. You can't get God merely by joining a church, by learning a creed, by reading books or obeying laws or going around with nice people

YOU CAN GET GOD ONLY BY LIVING HIM.

No one possesses more than an infinitesimal part of God. You can only have as much of God as you can imagine and need and work for and use. And all the rest of his Wonder and Beauty and Power are useless to you

If you are really interested in God, there's just one way. Seek Him, and use Him yourself. That's the only sermon that is really convincing.

Stocks Fail as Business Mirror

Since the ephemeral September boom, the stock market has conspicuously failed to act as a mirror of changes in the business world.

Thus it fell short of attaining the objective of federal regulation of the security markets as articulated by James M. Landis, former chairman of the SEC, and others.

While business volume, employment and profits climbed in the closing months of 1939, the stock market fell into a lifeless rut, with a mild downward price tendency.

AS A MATTER FACT, through the long decades there has been no readily demonstrable simultaneity of movements in the stock market and business. James Hughes, Wall Street statistician, who has explored this subject, came to the conclusion that in the days before money management at Washington, the market acted as a balance wheel with frequent bear markets amidst prosperity, and bull markets amidst depressions.

WALTER VON TRESCHOW, investment counsellor, in chatting about this subject, remarked that in his opinion market movements cannot be explained merely by looking at the current business data.

From his studies, he makes two conclusions. First, that the stock market is an entity unto itself—not a mere mirror of business. He said that the mood, or state of mind of the moneyed public is frequently a determinant of market movements. Referring to this matter, John M. Hancock, investment banker, once observed that there are times in Wall Street when there is a disposition to throw all good news in the waste basket and other times when the tendency is to ignore unfavorable news. These remarks stress the importance of psychological factors marketwise.

THE SECOND OBSERVATION of Mr. Von Treschow was that of all the statistical series which show a correlation with business and market movements he found data concerning changes in the rate of increase or decrease in total bank debt were the most prophetic. He said that these barometric figures give a signal sometimes a year or more in advance of basic changes in the business and speculative trend. The present status of this index, he said, makes it safe to forecast no major adverse change in business in the next six months.

SKEPTICS about the war boom—those who recognize that war orders would be limited in amount and those who saw in the recent expansion of domestic business some additions to inventory—have in some instances been ignoring the war babies, and have instead been investing their funds in stocks of the stable and substantial earners whose income is not closely related to the war. Men of this school have also beeen buying bonds a step or two below the high grade issues.

Those who kept cool during the exciting recent days when the Federal Reserve index of production crept up to the 1929 level, reasoned that the upturn would prove temporary as long as there were many millions unemployed.

THE WRITER has felt that the narrowing of the price gaps between agriculture and industry had a significant bearing on increased employment and enlarged business volume. Since such maladjustments in price and income relationships, though partly corrected, still exist, he thinks that the course of agricultural prices in the period ahead will give a clue to the outlook for business activity, profits, and employment.

LIKEWISE, when exchange of goods among the groups is impeded by maladjustments, sensitive borrowers and lenders begin to curtail on postponable capital and other expenditures, and the resultant changes in the rate of expansion or contraction of total bank debt constitute an effect of a shift in economic balance, rather than cause of prosperity or depression.

Rally Fails, Many Stocks Dip 2 Points

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP)—Rallying attempts in today's stock market failed to attract much of a following and leading issues turned downward.

While fractional advances were to be seen here and there, losses running to around 2 points predominated near midday. Offerings broadened for a while. The pace subsequently slowed.

U. S. Steel and Bethlehem, up after the opening, were among the first to backslide. Others in arrears were Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, Great Northern, Anaconda, Westinghouse, U. S. Rubber and Western Union.

Four 25,000-share blocks of Seaboard Air Line came out in early trading, unchanged at ¾.

Thoughts of possible new taxes, brokers said, remained as a speculative handicap, but some buying was attributed to the theory Thursday's selling burst may have been overdone.

Bonds and commodities were irregularly lower. European securities markets were mixed.

Boardrooms found comfort in week-end merchandising surveys which stressed the persistence of public spending throughout the nation.

Dunn & Bradstreet estimated the week's average gain in retail volume over the same period last year ranged from 7 to 13 per cent, with regional increases varying from 9 to 26 per cent for the Middle West, 2 to 5 per cent for the Pacific coast, 5 to 8 per cent for New England and 7 to 14 per cent for the East.

Interest was shown in the Federal Reserve figures for the seven-day period ended Wednesday disclosing a rise of $110,000,000 in excess reserves of member banks to the aggregate of $5,380,000,000. The record high for this item was $5,-520,000,000 established last October.

F. D. BUDGET HAS LEADERS WORRIED

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN
Special to Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—Something closely akin to panic—at least a frightful feeling of apprehension over debt and spending—exists among the responsible leaders of Congress today.

It has resulted in Sen. Pat Harrison's demand for a joint committee of Senate and House to examine the spending-apree budget and see what can be done to make a start toward a balance between income and outgo.

The reform does not go far enough. The whole budget system put into effect under President Harding in 1921 has crashed on the rock of delegated power.

There can be no fundamental reform in this crisis to rescue the taxpayer and preserve the credit of the government until the fundamental error in the budget law is corrected.

The trouble in Congress today lies in the fact that the budget has been made an executive budget.

The power should be taken back by Congress, which should make it a legislative budget.

There should be established at the House of Representatives—where appropriation bills must originate—a committee on the budget, to coordinate the activities of the Appropriations Committee, which spends, and the ways and means committee, which provides the revenue.

The director of the budget should be taken out of the Treasury, and from under the President, and made the servant of the popular branch of the Congress.

The Civil War was magnificently financed by a joint committee of the House having power over both the raising of revenue and the spending of it.

Gold Imports In 1939 Over 8 Billions

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—The Commerce Department said today gold imports into the United States in 1939 nearly doubled the previous high mark.

Last year's gold imports were $3,574,414,000, swollen by unprecedented movements of European capital to this country for safekeeping.

Although gold imports had exceeded $1,000,000,000 in each year since President Roosevelt revalued gold from $20.67 to $35 per ounce early in 1934, the previous record was $1,979,458,000 in 1938. A year in which gold movement was enhanced by the first Czechoslovakian crisis.

Last year's silver imports declined sharply to $85,307,000, probably because of the reduction in the United States purchase price for foreign silver from 43 to 35 cents per ounce. In 1938, silver imports totaled $230,531,000.

CANADA PLANS WAR BOND ISSUE

OTTAWA, Jan. 12 (Canadian Press)—Canada's first bond issue of the war—for $200,000,000—goes on sale Monday to help finance a $1,-000,000-a-day bill for the first year of hostilities.

Finance Minister Lieut. Col. J. J. Ralston said the bonds would be offered only to Canadian investors on a voluntary basis. The bonds will be offered at par and will not be tax-free as some World War issues

U. S. Steel May Build Huge Brazil Plant

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (INS)—The Roosevelt administration has induced the United States Steel Corp. to consider building a $35,-000,000 steel plant in Brazil.

Well-informed quarters said the corporation's finance committee will take up and possibly decide upon the project at a meeting Wednesday in Pittsburgh.

Plans call for a fully integrated plant, converting Brazilian iron ore and coal into steel plates, shapes, bars and rails for the country's internal construction needs.

The site would be close to the iron mines in Minas Geraes state and coal would come from Santa Catherina State.

The scheme calls for a $5,000,000 contribution from the corporation, $17,000,000 from the Export-Import Bank and the balance from the Brazilian Federal Government.

The bank's share would finance purchase from American foundries of the furnaces, rolling mills, blooming mills and other installations.

Some New Dealers have proposed entailing the plant's earnings in such a way that profits could be used to service Brazil's $350,000,000 defaulted foreign debt after prior obligations were discharged. This aspect of the plan was described as un developed, however.

Field surveys by the corporation's engineers confirmed the adequacy of Brazil's ore deposits, but indicated the coal supply would have to be supplemented by imports of American coal, suitable for cooking.

and noticed flames licking the sides of the oil burner.

20 Firemen Felled At North End Blaze

Boston's second four-alarm fire in 72 hours swept the Haymarket building, Washington st. and Haymarket sq., and menaced a score of office and supply buildings for more than two hours today.

One fireman suffered severe cuts and 20 others were nauseated by fumes from dense smoke, which bellowed from windows at both ends of the flaming structure.

Four 10-foot plate glass windows were shattered in rapid succession, showering glass on firemen in Haymarket sq.

Exploding drums of paints and lacquers in upper floors added to the danger. Within a few minutes, the entire roof of the 110-foot building was ablaze, from Haymarket sq. through to Friend st.

More than 10,000 folding chairs in a furniture storeroom were destroyed and the flames damaged a furrier's shop, a vacuum cleaner repair shop and an electric appliance salesroom.

Water damages was heavy in 20 offices in buildings in Sudbury and Washington sts, adjacent to the blaze. Total loss was estimated in excess of $50,000 by Chief Samuel J. Pope.

Harry Murphy, 38, of Rescue Company 2, suffered lacerations of both hands.

Reading Fire Fells Man

A 64-year-old boarder in a Reading home was overcome by smoke and burned, then rescued by firemen and a police officer when a two-hour blaze raged through the house early today.

Pvt. Louis Holden of the Reading Fire Department was burned on the head in the rescue.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Tafton, elderly owners of the single family, 2½ story dwelling on Bolton st., fled in their night-clothing to the snow-covered street.

Herbert L. Robinson, their boarder, was trapped by the fire and made unconscious by smoke.

As he lay in the burning building, Lieut. Charles Hazleton and Priv. Holden and Officer Thomas Fitzpatrick fought their way inside.

Holden, burned, was driven back, but Lieut. Hazleton and Fitzpatrick carried Robinson to the street, where he was treated for burns and revived.

Damage to the building, owned by Mrs. Hannah Hosmer of Concord, was estimated at several thousand dollars, was a total loss, and that an investigation to determine the cause of the blaze would be begun today.

Cooking

Study Fish Fry Technique

By MARTHA LEE

Our word "lady" comes from the Anglo-Saxon word for "loaf giver," which would seem to imply that every lady should be a good cook!

The antagonist to frying fish, sometimes encountered among women, arises from soggy frying which results in the fish becoming a blotter full of fat. The fat penetrates in to the tender, delicate interior flesh making it difficult for the digestive juices to get at it, and causing indigestion. But there is a simple way of frying without causing these unpleasant results.

To fry fish well the fat must be hot enough (350 to 380 deg. F.) to sear the exterior rapidly and form a protective coating. This sealing of the outside of the fish prevents the egress of valuable nutriment, substances and the loss of delicate flavor.

EGG AND CRUMB MIXTURE

Dry the fish carefully after cleaning. Salt on well with salt and sprinkle with pepper. Roll in fine bread or cracker crumbs, flour or corn meal till the fish is evenly covered. Then dip into a beaten egg diluted with two tablespoons of cold water, and back into the crumbs, flour or corn meal. (Use a dish large enough so that the fish is neither bent nor broken when covered with the mixture.) Now the fish has an anti-grease suit of armor. Drop as it reaches the hot fat, a crust is immediately formed.

To obtain a heavy coating, proceed as above, then chill the fish for 15 or 20 minutes. For a second time, dip it in crumbs. For croquettes, a still heavier crust is sometimes used and the redipping in crumbs can be done as often as the cook desires.

TO FRY FISH

Fry the fish after it has been dipped in the crumbs until it is thoroughly cooked and golden brown. Lift from the fat carefully and leave to drain on heavy paper. (Use a flat perforated lifter to remove the fish in order not to break the contours of the delicate flesh.)

Small fish can be fried whole. Large fish should be cut into lengths, fillets or steaks to fry conveniently.

A FEW SUGGESTIONS

1—Fat should be hot enough to golden brown a piece of bread in a little less than a minute, 375 to 380 degrees.

2—Don't crowd the utensil.

3—When fish rises to the top of the fat and is a golden brown it is cooked (usually from three to five minutes).

4—Serve hot at once after draining on paper. Garnish it with greens, etc., attractively.

FRIED SEA SCALLOPS

2 lbs. (1 qt.) scallops
2 eggs, slightly beaten
½ cup flour
1 tsp. salt
Dash of paprika

Wash scallops, drain and dry between folds of absorbent paper. Dip in eggs, then in seasoned flour. Fry in hot deep fat (375 deg. F.) for 2 to 3 minutes, or until golden brown. Drain on unglazed paper. Serve with tartar sauce. Makes 6 portions.

OYSTER CUTLETS

1 qt. oysters
1 cup oyster liquor
1 cup light cream
¼ cup butter
½ cup flour
½ tsp. salt
Dash of cayenne
1 tbsp. minced parsley
2 eggs
Fine, dry bread crumbs

Heat oysters in liquor 5 to 8 minutes, or until plump and edges begin to curl; drain, add liquor to cream, and chop oysters fine. Make a roux of butter and flour, then add liquor-cream mixture slowly and cook 5 minutes, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Add seasonings and oysters; then stir in 1 egg, slightly beaten, and cook 1 minute longer. Turn out on large plate and chill. Shape into cutlets, dip in remaining egg, beaten, and roll in crumbs. Fry in hot deep fat (380 deg. F.) for 2 to 3 minutes, or until golden brown. Makes 6 portions.

High School Students Should Enjoy Every Minute of Dance

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

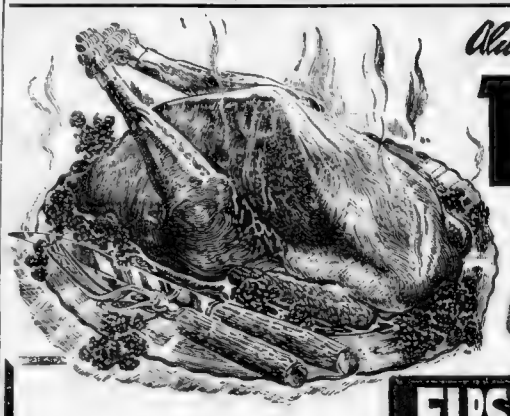
Our formal school dance begins at nine o'clock and ends at one a. m. The young lady I have invited finds it necessary to return home at midnight.

After such an affair it is usually customary to go somewhere to dine and dance, but in this case twelve o'clock seems to be the deadline. This does not give us much time to go anywhere to dine unless we leave the dance quite early.

Please advise me as to what the proper procedure would be in this case.

MALE READER

I agree with you . . . that it wouldn't be the right thing to do, to leave the school dance earlier than you have to. As it is, you will have less than three hours of dancing, and I think the best plan is for you to stay and enjoy that. To me there doesn't seem much point in leaving this delightful kind of dance just to go to another place to dance.



Always a Treat for the Whole Family

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

THERE'S NEVER an idle moment in the life of a debutante . . . especially in January when the girls attend classes at the Junior League to learn all the important facts about social welfare which they must have at their finger tips in order to pass the final exams in the provisional training course next month . . . If they flunk these exams they forfeit the coveted prestige of attaining membership in the League (but few ever flunk) . . .

The training course began this week and has kept the girls so busy that few of them have been able to entertain house guests for the several deb parties taking place today . . .

This morning they either "cut" their classes at the League or were given the day off, for they showed up at the Vincent Club to get instructions for their first important duty as new members of this exclusive organization . . . selling ads for the Vincent show program . . .

Luncheon Honors Evelyn Ames Baker

AFTER THE VINCENT MEETING about sixty or seventy girls drove out to Dedham to be guests at the luncheon which Mrs. Frederick P. Royce gave for her granddaughter, Evelyn Ames Baker, daughter of Mrs. Royce Baker of Weston . . .

The party was a buffet luncheon and the debutante received in a frock of pearl gray silk crepe with a corsage of orchids and gardenias . . . Following dessert and demi tasse a number of the guests are attending the tea and shower which Mrs. Baker and Mrs. John B. Mickles are giving at the Baker home for Mrs. Charles H. Smith (Cornelia Curtis) . . .

Mrs. Smith, a bride of New Year's week-end, is the first of this season's debs to change her name to Mrs. . . . She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Curtis of Gloucester st. . . .

Joan Curtis to Make Bow Feb. 6

STILL MORE NOTES FROM THE DEBUTANTE FRONT . . . Joan Curtis, daughter of Mrs. Benjamin Estabrook of Milton, will make her social bow at a dance on Feb. 6 . . . Patricia Suydam, Gotham's number two Glamour Girl, has been detained by illness from visiting Elaine Hartt of Dedham this week-end . . . She was to have arrived last evening but has postponed her visit for a few weeks . . . Elaine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Philip Hartt, and will be guest of honor at a luncheon given by her aunt, Mrs. Arthur W. Hartt, on Jan. 24 . . .

A profusion of pink snapdragon and white roses will provide a festive setting for the house dance at which Louise Sargent will make her debut this evening at her parents' home on the Fenway . . . Carrying out the pink and white floral decorations, the attractive blonde hostess will wear a gown of pink tulle and lame with a corsage of pink camellias . . . She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sargent.

You Can Be Beautiful

Coiffure For Your Type

By ARLINE GOULD

IF THERE is anyone we're glad to lend an ear to, it's a practical coiffure stylist. Deliver us from these extremists who would tear in with scissors and shear off two-years' carefully nurtured growth of locks without a thought to after-the-hairdo care.

So we listen with great respect to a protege of one of the greatest salon men on two continents. One of his lavishest creations is illustrated at the right.

He doesn't try to rush every woman into an "up" coiffure. And he says that many of us are wearing "down" coiffures would improve our facial contours and bring out charming settings of nose and eyes, if we would but try a real "up" coiffure.

Hair styles this winter can be divided into two groups—longish in back, designed in a chignon or twistle coiffure with the hair pulled up off the forehead in front and way up off the ears on the side. Sometimes the front hair is so arranged as to look like an old-fashioned pompadour bringing the hair off the face with height in the front. With this type of hairdress, of course, the snood hats are the perfect compliment.

The other type of coiffure is the short, swirled coiffure. Here the hair is again brought up off the forehead to give height and up off the ears, but is cut short in the back and softly swirled close to the head. Over this type of coiffure, the new close-fitting turbans are quite perfect and at the same time this type of coiffure is necessary if you want to wear that particular type of hat

OVERLOOK the vagaries of extreme hair styles . . . yet look as though you were quite ahead-of-the-moment with your hair-do . . . so advises Mr. Paul, of Charles of the Ritz salons. The most wearable version, lovely and becoming to every face, is this half-up, half-down coiffure he created.

Fashion Resolutions

By ANNICE BRINK

IT'S NOT a bit too late to look over some really sensible fashion resolutions, offered by an authority, and credit them with being the best of their kind . . . as we did:

I will insist on knowing more about the goods I buy, since it's the way a garment looks after wear (the way it washes or cleans or stands up under sunlight, water, action) and not the way it looks when new that determines my ultimate satisfaction with it.

I will build up a good week-end wardrobe (rather along the lines of a man's, who never has to "run out and buy something" when an invitation arrives) with a backlog of clothes in it that will serve me all year 'round, for "grand" or "simple" week-ends. It will include Scotch sweaters, a good tweed suit, a few classic shirts, some properly cut slacks, a bathing suit, a casual coat,, an ageless, dateless informal and an easy-to-pack evening outfit.

I will spend more on good tweeds, thin stockings, and handwork, and less on tricky shoes, useless costume gadgets and crazy hats.

I will have at least one simple, black, covered-up evening gown in my wardrobe, since I never feel so completely right in any other.

I will not blindly follow fashion mandates, but will adapt them to my needs and my figure, wearing my "short skirts" an inch or two longer if it's kinder to my legs, sticking to brimmed hats in spite of what's chic, if they're more flattering to me.

Love and Marriage—His Search for the Right Girl in Vain—as Yet

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm having trouble finding the right girl. I'm past 25 and think it's time I was getting married. I've had dates with quite a few girls, but after taking them out a couple of times something comes up which makes me think I wouldn't be happy with them. And so I drift from one to the other.

Then, too, some of the girls I thought would do didn't care for me. I have a little nest egg laid away to be used in the purchase of a farm when I marry. Right now I live with my parents on a small place in the country. So you see I'm having a hard time deciding which is the right girl.

FARMER.

Don't lose heart; I don't believe you've met the right girl yet. You are still young. At 25 you needn't be anxious about getting married. If you go out with numbers of girls before you marry, you are much more likely to choose the right one in the end—one who will fulfill all your dreams of what a wife should be.

And while you are deciding, be sure you pick out a girl who likes to do the work around a farmhouse, such as cooking good substantial meals, making butter and cheese, canning and preserving and so forth.

ELSIE ROBINSON writes the woman's viewpoint, discusses everyday affairs and problems regularly in the Boston American.

'His Girl Friday' Here Soon--Gala Vaudeville at Boston

Grant, Russell Share Leads

"His Girl Friday," Columbia's female edition of the Hecht MacArthur play, "The Front Page," will be screening here soon. It opened yesterday at New York's Radio City Musical Hall.

Cary Grant and Rosalind Russell are co-starred. Grant plays Manager, Editor Walter Burns and Miss Russell—a far cry from the late Chicago Herald-Examiner's criminal courts reporter, Hildy Johnson, who inspired the character, will be Hilda Johnson. Ralph Bellamy's role as an insurance-peddling Lothario marks his first teaming with Grant since their memorable comedy partnership in "The Awful Truth."

Hollywood's preview audience was impressed by Producer Howard Hawks' introduction of overlapping dialogue and rapid-fire speech, and his almost complete elimination of closeups.

Bowdoin's Bill

Bowdoin Square's screen attractions, starting tomorrow, will be "Another Thin Man," with William Powell and Myrna Loy again co-starring in this third of the detective series, and "Rulers of the Sea."

VIVIEN LEIGH and Charles Laughton, most popular stars on the local screens this week, are co-starred in Paramount's "Sidewalks of London," which you will be seeing on the Met's screen soon.

Midnight Show At Old Howard

The Old Howard's special midnight show, starting at 11:30 tonight, will have for its attraction, the current, catchy revue, "Red, Hot and Beautiful," co-starring Jean Mode and Tanya.

Others on the bill are Jack Rosen, Fred Binder, Pat Paige, Billy "Scratch" Wallace, Loretta Montez, Miller Bros. and Lois and the Four Arleys.

"Boston After Dark," by George Holland, appears every day in the Boston American.

Powell's Latest Hit for Olympia

Newlywed William Powell (he married 21-year-old filmster Diana Lewis the other day) is having another adventure with his screen wife, Myrna Loy, in "Another Thin Man," due at the Washington St. Olympia Theater tomorrow. Paired with this picture will be "Bad Little Angel," starring Virginia Weidler.

Three Sailors Stop the Show

Missing the first show at the RKO Boston yesterday, the Three Sailors arrived in time to stop the second show. They may miss trains but there isn't a split-second the matter with their footlights timing. The sailor-suited trio spice tap-dancing with tomfoolery, which is pretty much on the rough-house side, but the audience loved it. And, like crackerjack, the more they got the more they wanted.

Reynolds and White, in their trampy-looking tweeds, carry on with well-planned nonsense. Their act has a surprise finish which we'll let you discover for yourselves.

Teen-aged Gloria Blake sings with surprising power and sweetness such semi-classical numbers as "Blue Danube," "Gianinna Mia" and others. A "mike" is not only unnecessary stage equipment in her case—it is a detriment.

Three teeterboard boys, the Vespers, open the show with some hand-to-hand balancing and other eye-popping stunts. The closing act, made up of three girls and two boys, call themselves "The Phil Farrel Revue." They do rhythmic taps singly and in unison.

Two first run films make up the screen bill. Probably the most popular with RKO Boston audiences will be Cowboy Gene Autry's newest picture, "South of the Border."

"Cafe Hostess," co-starring Ann Dvorak and Preston Foster, exposes the "clip joint" racket.

Stern Honored by United Artists' Sales Drive

Local exhibitor and motion picture trade friends are pridefully calling attention to the honor United Artists is conferring on its Eastern district sales manager by designating its Eastern division sales drive "The Charles Stern Testimonial Drive."

Charles Stern

Mr. Stern, who has complete supervision of New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Boston and New Haven territories, was formerly a New England theater owner and later United Artists' Boston branch manager.

The current drive, terminating Feb. 17, celebrates one of United Artists' most ambitious lineups of releases.

Included are the following films soon to be released by United Artists.

Samuel Goldwyn's "Raffles," Hal Roach's "Of Mice And Men," "The Housekeeper's Daughter," Edward Small's "My Son, My Son," Walter Wanger's "Slightly Dishonorable," "The House Across The Bay" and "Personal Life," David O. Selznick's "Rebecca," Charles Chaplin's "The Dictator," with Chaplin starring; "Captain Caution," "Two Years Before The Mast" and "The House of Monte Cristo."

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

CHICAGO, Jan. 12—Virginia and Darryl Zanuck train for New York Tuesday, taking with them prints of "The Blue Bird," the Shirley Temple picture, and one of "Grapes of Wrath."

Darryl will be present when Maeterlinck's charming fantasy opens at the Hollywood Theater in New York, Jan. 19, and also when "Grapes of Wrath" makes its initial bow to Broadway at the Rivoli on the 23rd. These are by far the most important pictures Zanuck made last year and he wants personally to see they get off to a good start.

Lillian Gish is loyal, an attribute too few people possess. She will prove it when D. W. Griffith, who started her on her movie career, is ready to film "Crusade," his history of the movies.

Lillian starred in "Birth of a Nation," "Hearts of the World," "Orphans of the Storm" and other pictures in the silent days under his direction—and it was through his understanding and help that she became the greatest silent star of her day.

She wires me to say that she will take a leave of absence from "Life With Father," her stage play in which she is going on tour, as soon as D. W. is ready to make his picture. Says Lillian in her wire: "The industry never needed his early inspiring greatness more than now."

Victor Mature, who gets his big break in Hal Roach's "One Million B. C." is back in his home town, Louisville, Ky.—and don't be surprised if he marires his childhood sweetheart, Jeanette Morris, before he returns to Hollywood.

When he left Kentucky he vowed he would never return until he had made good in the movies and that he would not ask his Southern sweetheart to marry him until his career was well underway. Well, Victor has done exceptionally well in a short time so wedding bells should ring any day now.

LAUGHING GARBO WOWS MET AUDIENCES--HER BEST ROLE

'Ninotchka' Tops In Light Comedy

By PEGGY DOYLE

"Ninotchka" should make Garbo just about as popular in Moscow's Red Square as is the weatherman lately sacked by Soviet Dictator Stalin for failing to go the whole hog on the below-zero Finnish forecast.

For the gorgeous Swede—who'll have you laughing fit to kill this week at the Metropolitan Theater—makes the Russian political system appear as ridiculous as the intrepid Finns are making the shivery Red Army. There wasn't a straight face in the jam-packed house yesterday.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer had a genuine inspiration when it chose Ernst Lubitsch to direct Garbo in her first venture into light comedy. Together they have contrived entertainment that is as light as a Madame Pollard souffle, as malicious as Monty Woolley a la A. Woollcott and as gay as New Year's Eve.

And after you've once seen Garbo laughing and frivolous you'll wonder why the studio for so long was content to have her remain merely fascinating. There never was anyone on stage or scree more enchanting than Garbo in her present impish, ilful mood and tense.

Nor does the film's excellence end with the direction and the Garbo performance. Charles Brackett, Billy Wilder and Walter Reisch have prepared a script, based on Melchoir Lengyel's original story, that rings the bell as to dialogue and compactness. It is witty and so sutbly risque that the Hayes boys probably never realized it was elevating their own eyebrows. Outstanding, too, is William Daniels' photography.

"Ninotchka" positively reeks with juicy sequences, and these are at their best when Garbo and the three frolicsome "comrades," Sig. Rumann, Felix Bressart and Alexander Granach, are sharing the screen. Then, again, don't miss the comrades' unalloyed delight at sight of the French cigarette girls nor the goat milk drinking Garbo's sudden and uproariously funny reaction to her first champagne.

And if the "comrades" are the funniest trio of the year, Melvyn Douglas is its most persuasive Romeo. He'll do nothing for mankind, as he tells the beguiling Ninotchka, but for women—eh, the record is not so bleak.

It had been Douglas' pleasure to try to regain possession of her priceless jewel collection fo "Princess" Ina Claire. But on meeting with "Commissar" Ninotchka, come from Moscow's Red Square to Paris to sell these very gems for the Soviet government and the suave Frenchman capitulates to her superior charms. She being a Russian, is a bit slower o the uptake, but when she doe discard her stern Bolshevik cod he discovers her to Le the mos outrageously merry and enchanting woman of them all.

GRETA GARBO as a stern-faced commissar in "Ninotchka" at the Met. Then she laughs her way to new screen fame.

"The Secret of Dr. Kildare," th second feature, continues the youn Doctor Kildare series in a manne to strengthen its already wid appeal. Lionel Barrymore's crotch etty brilliant Dr. Gillespie agai dominates the film although Le Ayres carries on capably in th name role. There is a nice blene ing of comedy and drama in thi decidedly interesting story, an again the supporting cast provid capable performances.

Sonja Henie Film Scores At Paramount and Fenway

Snow fun is just what the Sonja Henie fans requested—and get in "Everything Happens at Night," the international snow queen's newest Twentieth Century-Fox release now unreeling on the Paramount and Fenway screens.

She is still the hottest thing on ice—this chubby Norwegian watch-charm who looks as purely decorative and fragile as something dreamed up by a chef for a birthday cake until her doll size skates touch the ice.

But even she can't skate all the time and so Producer Darryl F. Zanuck has provided her with not one but two romances. They are Ray Milland and Robert Cummings, rival foreign correspondents on the scent of a world news beat—the present whereabouts and plans of a great European statesman and peace advocate. The famous Dr. Norden, who was supposedly assassinated in Warsaw, springs an international surprise by releasing sensational inside stories of Europe's politics from his Swiss hideout.

The newsmen, who meet and simultaneously fall in love with the lovely little Sonja, are totally unaware that her father and the widely-sought Dr. Norden are one and the same.

By a little skullduggery at the cable office, the shrewder Milland manages to send young Cummings' scoop revealing the doctor's closely shrouded street address under his own by line. When Sonja learns her father's identity has been made known to the world and by her two ski-loving suitors, she breaks with them.

However, it is their well timed aid that eventually enables father and daughter to escape the men who planned Dr Norden's assassination in Warsaw and to find hospice in the United States.

Before ship's sailing, it appears that Bob and Ray are neck and neck in the cardiac sweepstakes But you dont know these boys They never miss a trick when it on each other and the finale discovers Bob and Sonja giving each other 'til death do-us part looks Ray, ashore and seeming not at all upset at being left behind, is burging the doctor's memoirs to his manly chest and doubt'less envisioning a series of news beats.

Louise Campbell, in the second feature, "Emergency Squad," is one of the prettiest girl reporters ever but it is to le hoped her job getting tactics don't start a precedent. Cecil De Mille's son-in-law handsome Anthony Quinn and Robert Paige have featured roles

P. D.

ELSIE ROBINSON writes the woman's viewpoint, discusses everyday affairs and problems regularly in the Boston American.

Renee Headlines New Globe Bill

Mlle Renee came to the Globe stage today at the head of the new traveling burlesque show. Renee will be at the Globe for a week or so.

Mlle. Renee

Frances White, Lorraine Jackson and Olive Sharron are three more featured dancer queens in the new show. Surrounding these siren specialists are 30 dancing girls of the cutie doll type and some of these dish choruines will be the burlesque stars of tomorrow.

CONNOISSEUR OF DEATH

A Complete Short Story Daily on This Page

By SHANE O'NEILL

GRAHAM'S quick dark eyes flashed from one end of the banquet table to the other, it was a habit of his visually to absorb everyone in a room whenever it was possible, and since this was a small gathering, it was comparatively easy.

"Who's that over there?" The words came softly yet filled with the eager spirit of one intensely interested in others, a natural enough attribute to Tom Graham, and one which in large measure was responsible for his selection as first assistant by the prosecutor's office. To Tom, people, unless he knew them personally, were not human beings, but potential friends or enemies of the law.

A rather biased attitude, and one based upon intuition, it might be said, yet Graham was wrong very infrequently, and it often helped him to conclusions that provided swift solutions to crimes.

"That—why that's Basil Garlyl, the European biologist," his companion, Jerry Hawkes, answered. "Would you like to meet him?"

Graham surveyed the scientist from across the table for a moment, studying the deep-set greenish eyes beneath heavy, iron gray brows, the shock of black hair flowing back from a high forehead. As he watched, the man smiled, reminding Graham of a wolf in the act of snarling.

"Mean looking customer," he remarked, and Hawkes laughed.

"You never can get your job out of your mind, Tom," he said. "I swear, you'd regard a saint with suspicion if you ever met one . . . which isn't likely, in your business."

As Graham prepared to answer, the toastmaster beckoned to him, and with a murmured excuse to his friend he went over.

A STRANGE MAN

"This is the young paladin of the law I've been telling you about, professor," the toastmaster said. "I'd like you to meet each other. Professor Garlyl, this is Tom Graham, the youngest man we've ever had running the district attorney's office. His superior has been ill almost since the first day of his term and Graham has been prosecutor in fact."

"Interesting, interesting," murmured the professor, "and I suppose you are a relentless pursuer of evildoers, my young friend?" His voice was deep, and pleasing; it reminded Tom Graham of elusive music.

"I try to be, Professor," he answered. "By the way, that's an interesting band on that cigar. One I've never seen before."

"I am sure that you have not," the Professor replied, precisely, "because it was made especially for me. Even the aroma of this cigar is very probably different from any you have ever smelled. I do not believe that it is duplicated anywhere in the world." He smiled agreeably, and then looked at his watch. "I must beg your forgiveness," he told the toastmaster, "but I really must go. Another appointment—most unfortunate. Good night. It has been a pleasure to meet you, Mr. Graham." he bowed and left them.

"Interesting man," Graham said, "very, very interesting. I can still smell that cigar. A distinctive aroma, as he said."

"He certainly is," Doctor Megley answered, "and cigars aren't his only hobby. He's a connoisseur in almost everything—food, drink . . . and, they say, women."

Graham nodded and thanked the doctor for having invited him to meet Basil Garlyl. Then he left to rejoin his friend Hawkes. Shortly afterward they deserted the dinner and repaired to a near-by bar, a favorite place of theirs. Graham had little to say, and was apparently lost in thought, until at last, his friend rose from the table.

"There's no use staying with you when you're in this mood," he said, shortly. When he left, his friend was still sipping a highball slowly and gazing at the ceiling.

It was no surprise to Tom Graham to be wakened from a sound sleep at four the following morning. Such interruptions in a normal life had, themselves, become an ordinary part of his routine. But his lips set in a thin tight line, when he heard what his caller had to say.

"Dead?" he snapped. "Right. I'll be there at once."

On the way to Vonnie Burgess' apartment, in the squad car sent to bring them, Graham obtained a quick vignette of the murder from the police sergeant at the wheel.

NO MOTIVE

"Hm—just like the others, eh? I wonder . . . I wonder." He shuddered as he thought of it. A neat slit in the jugular, each one like every other, and all the victims women. No possible motive in any of the cases. All the ordinary things—robbery, jealousy, revenge—had been ruled out by careful investigation. No clues remained. There was, he mused, one coincidental factor added to the method of killing them. All had been more or less friendly with army people, all had traveled in similar circles . . . somewhere between Broadway, the cafe group, and society people, yet not quite of any. And this one, Vonnie Burgess, had been like the rest. Suddenly, he remembered something, and he smiled grimly.

"I don't know, Sergeant," he said, "but I think that this one will do it."

"You mean, you know who did it?" The sergeant was skeptical. In none of the foregoing killings had there been anything to work on, and now Graham, without even showing up, had pulled a suspect out of his hat. The sergeant didn't like working with mirrors. "Okay, Mr. Graham, name him, and we'll pinch him."

Graham chuckled.

"I'm not so sure, Sergeant . . . I'll know when we get there, and here we are now. It won't be long."

The youthful prosecutor did little more than walk about the dead woman's apartment after having verified the sergeant's story, but he smiled contentedly as he strode. At length he called the policeman over.

"Sergeant, I want you to select five men. They are to be dressed in plain clothes and will meet me on this corner within two hours." He handed the sergeant a slip of paper with an address on it. "Mind you, I want no one from the detective bureau. Just regular patrolmen, who'll do exactly as they're told . . . and who have plenty of nerve."

Mystified, Sergt. Gorman nodded. He was still puzzled when, with his squad, he met Graham, who spoke quickly and sharply, giving his instructions without wasting a word.

They were to surround a small brownstone house in the middle of the block.

DANGEROUS WORK

"You," said Graham, pointing to one of them, "get to the roof, draw your gun, and wait. If anyone comes out, challenge from cover. If necessary for an arrest, shoot, and shoot to kill." He paused, and the cold insistence of his words struck them all. "You, take the backyard," he ordered a second, "and the same thing goes there. You take the front from across the street, and you two take the sides of the house. Gorman, you and I will go in. All of you be careful to avoid being seen as you take your stations."

Gorman said later that he still thought the Assistant D. A. was nuts when they rang the bell, and a bathrobed manservant admitted them. He said that he was even more convinced of it, when a strange but fine-looking man welcomed them. But the change in that man's face, from genial, friendly surprise to bestial fury, when Graham dryly told him that he was under arrest for the murder of Vonnie Burgess, was something else again, and the sergeant watched him tensely, even though the expression was quickly and skillfully masked.

"But, my dear young man . . . this is preposterous," protested Basil Garlyl, "I have been here since I returned from the banquet to meet someone . . . since about 10-o'clock, is it not, Michele?"

The manservant nodded imperturbably, "Yes, Professor."

"I arreat you, Professor Garlyl," Graham repeated, "and I have good reason, because in my pocket I have the stub of a very very extraordinary cigar. I was told at a certain banquet last night that only one man in the world possessed such cigars."

He smiled, but as he did so, Basil Garlyl sprang, and simultaneously, Michele, the manservant, attacked Gorman. Their purpose was quick escape, and they succeeded temporarily, stunning Graham and his aid, and turning out the lights. A few seconds later four pistol shots rang out from in front of the house, and then there was silence. Gorman and Graham emerged to see the man who had been stationed in front bending over two prone bodies stretched in the street.

There was no pity in Graham's voice as he said, "Saves the State the trouble and money of doing it the long way."

THE END

Basil Garlyl sprang, and simultaneously, Michele, the manservant, attacked Gorman. Their purpose was quick escape.

Boston After Dark -:- By George Holland

several months ago when our firm (it is really one, both being owned by the same people) underwent a severe shaking up in the name of economy . . . Several men throughout the country lost their jobs because they (the firm) had their territory men double in brass, i. e., handle both the Famous and Paramount catalogues.

"HERE IN BOSTON there was a situation . . . Harold and I, in the points of length of service and effectiveness, were, I believe, about even-Stephen . . . I was lucky enough to have Buddy as a brother . . . If you were our employer under those circumstances—remembering all the while that otherwise the two men were even up—who would you have given the nod to? . . . There really wasn't a hell of a lot of nepotism there, was there? . . . I'm not angry . . . I don't ask any retraction . . . I just thought you'd like to know the whole story . . . Best wishes . . . Sincerely, Mack Clark."

WELL, MACK, THAT'S fixing us firmly on a spot, and in answer to your questions: "Who would you have given the nod to?" I make this reply . . . To you . . . And in answer to your next query: "There wasn't a hel. of a lot of nepotism there at all, was there?," my answer is this . . . No, there wasn't . . . As your brother is the second-best male singer of popular songs in the land (in my opinion), and as blood is thicker, as a general rule, than water, your employers would have been silly to alienate a lad who has much to say about the choosing of the songs he is going to sing, and consequently "plug" . . . Aside from that it is discernible from the spirit and wording of your letter that you are the kind of a guy that a music firm should feel happy to have as an employe—Brother Buddy or no Buddy.

But there was individu. [illegible] mant," Mack, my boy . . . The meaningful whisper "He's Buddy Clark's brother" has been practically a chorus since you assumed your job a year or so ago . . . Having passed a few unpleasant years identified solely as a couple of famous men's "brother-in-law"—and a notable victim of the charge of nepotism himself, your correspondent should have known better than to use the hateful word. . . .

GRANDMA IN PEACE PLEA

Pledging her full support to any war in defense of this country, a 75-year-old grandmother, Mrs. Minnie P. Wade of Avon, joins with many mothers in the National Legion of Mothers of America in protest against sending American youth to fight for European causes.

Mrs. Wade writes:

"I am a grandmother 75 years old, and I have grandchildren who in the event of war are eligible to serve. I am not in favor of sending them to foreign nations to fight for foreign causes and have them made gunfodder. I am in favor of protecting our own country and keeping it from foreign entanglements."

Only for America would she sacrifice her son in the cause of war, a Somerville mother, Mrs. Bridget T. Kenney of 23 Perry st., writes:

"Will you please add my name to the list of mothers of young sons who seek to keep them from foreign wars? I have one son, and I don't want him to fight anyone's war, unless it is for the United States of America.

"I had one brother who fought for the British during the World War. And a year after the war he died of pneumonia, for his body was all broken up when he returned.

"My husband fought in the Spanish-American war, and when he returned he too was so broken in body he died within two years. So I've had all I want of war-broken bodies and spirits to think about.

"I have brought up my boy without a father since he was 7 years old, and he is very dear to me. So let's keep our boys from anything that means killing. It is too brutal."

From Wilton, Me., Mrs. Robert A Carleton writes:

"I think your organization is wonderful. I have a husband I wouldn't want to lose and I know there are other women with husbands, sons or sweethearts who feel the same way."

To win for peace is more important than to win in war, Mrs. A Thime of Everett writes in joining the Legion.

Probes Coast Guard Mystery

A Naval Intelligence officer was in Boston today checking possible murder clues in the disappearance of First Class Seaman John Henry Ball, Jr., from the Coast Guard cutter Thetis following an evening's shore leave on Oct. 30.

Ball, at 23, had his first hitch in the Coast Guard almost completed when he dropped from sight on his way back to the navy yard in Charlestown. He had been promised promotion on his excellent record.

Indicating Coast Guard officials subscribed to the foul play theory was the fact that Ball has not been marked as a deserter from the service as is customary after a man has been absent 10 days.

The missing seaman's mother, Mrs John Henry Ball, Sr., of Kirkwood, Mo., who has kept in contact with the Coast Guard headquarters since his disappearance, was today reported on the point of collapse.

AUSTEN LAKE

Five Star Final Is VFW Indoor Feature

TOMORROW NIGHT AT 9:30, FIVE LEAN YOUTHS in embroidered track scanties, will line up on the race rim of the Boston Garden and start clawing taw with their spikes. In the center of the oval a man in formal wedding attire will carol, loud and clear, "Th' Dreeeeem my-uuul," his voice carrying to the farthest recesses of the building. Ten thousand people—the Veterans of Foreign Wars hope—will stretch their necks as another gent in evening wear shoots a pistol and the five ankle-jockeys start on their 11-lap journey. Possibly four minutes and 13 seconds later, when the feature event of the evening is over, the second fastest indoor mile in Boston history will be run, eclipsing the 4:14.4 standard which Gene Venzke set some years back, but not Cunningham's 4:10 at the 1937 B. A. A. games.

AUSTEN LAKE

The five, bringing together a grotesque assortment of thick-and-thin shins, bony cavities and manly bulges, are the best milers in the land—Glenn (Rockinghorse) Cunningham, Archie (Chunky) San Romani, Wayne (Herring Bones) Rideout and Charles (Piano Wire) Fenske. Each in his various time has bettered 4:11 for the distance, which considering that Joie Ray's world record in 1919 was 4:14, indicates the caliber of the race and how tempus has fugited.

Glenn's Last Race-Year?

CUNNINGHAM, NOW IN HIS RIPE THIRTIES and nearing the stage of physical fuzz, is a human clock with great hammy thighs which work like engine rods and have driven him to a world's indoor record of 4.04.4 at Hanover two years ago. Milers tell me that the steady precision of his pace, which seldom varies a second on each lap, is heart breaking to rivals.

For there are two schools of thought in mile racing, one goes "all out" from the gun, burns its power in the first three-quarters and finishes on sheer nerve, literally shearing off its body-bolts and scattering its parts on the home stretch. The other runs, like Cunningham, spending its fuel equally over the distance so that the last drop of energy will be exploded at the tape—a beautiful ideal when it works.

No major track meet from California's sun-kissed shores to the rock-bound coast of Maine, is a success these years unless Cunningham has filed his entry. Yet the early frosts of physical winter are beginning to set in and Glenn will probably burn his shoes after this season, tiring of the swift whirl about the country in Pullmans, planes and buses. For last season he traveled 200,000 miles (his own reckoning) as an athlete and a touring missionary for the University of Kansas extension course.

Tomorrow night, according to his custom, a meet official will sidle up to Glenn, tap him on the shoulder and say, "Forty-five minutes." Then Glenn will rise and begin his preparation for the race, stretching his neck muscles, performing stomach bends and warming the rubber in his legs. Ten minutes before race time he will go to an open door in the rear of the Garden, exhaling the smoke laden fog of the big arena from his lungs and taking in deep drafts of fresh air—oxygen that he claims supplies the fuel for his race.

Medal for B. C.'s Lou

THE VETERANS OF FOREIGN WARS ARE A PARVENU to Boston track, crowding the already overstuffed calendar. Yet in their first major meet they have come up with the cream of U. S. race talent. How? Simply that John Lane, enterprising brains of the V. F. W. sport committee, shuffled off to New Orleans for the New Year's Sugar Bowl carnival and signed an entire track circus, doing in a couple of hours what formerly required months of stuffy dictation, haggling by mail and nervous exhaustion. Not only that but he simplified the work for Bill Kenney of the K. of C. and Tom Kanaly of the B. A. A., who will merely drop into the dressing rooms tomorrow night, uncap fountain pens, put the star athletes under contract and dust their hands of a hitherto unpleasant drudge.

Negroes have a chance to dominate all of the feature events tomorrow night, excepting the "Dream Mile"—and there is an inspired title which Lane might never come up with again in a lifetime. As in almost every other sport in which the Negro is given equal opportunity with the whites, they are, racially, the best in the track world.

John Borican, for example, who made a world record of 1:49.8 at Hanover last winter is matched in the half mile with John Woodruff, the Olympic champion—their first meeting. Jim Herbert, a New York post office employe, who holds the terrestial mark in the 600 (1:11.1), is prospective tops in that distance. Gil Walker, the Boston College freshman, who is in the fastest lad in local college circles, is the money man in the dash and Edward Dugger, Tufts hurdler, has the bulge in the hurdles. All are Negroes.

As an incidental gesture the Veterans plan to stop the clock just before dash events and pin a gold Medal of Appreciation, sized like a butter pat, on the chest of little Lou Montgomery—for what? For Lou's "sporting tact," as the citation reads, in withdrawing from Boston College's football trip to the Cotton Bowl and saving a "situation"—singular thought!

One might add, in a sotto voce whisper, that the "Dream Mile" has a feud aspect with Cunningham and San Romani fuming, fussing and snubbing each other. Glenn is sore over something that Archie said, and Archie is sore right back again. It sounds like a press agent's plug, but the fact is so. The only thing that Archie would like better than beating Glenn in a foot race is to beat him in two foot races. This is his chance, because he licked Cunningham at New Orleans on New Year's Day.

NATION'S TRACK GREATS ON V. F. W. GARDEN CARD

A star-studded army of indoor track toilers whirls into action tomorrow night at the Garden, when the Veterans of Foreign Wars stage their annual meeting.

National champions in every featured event include the pick of the runners in the land of the free, and help make Boston's first track games of the season a brilliant production.

Five invitation events, the 50-yard dash, the 600, 880, mile and two mile, headline the card. High school and college relays, a pole vault, steeplechase, high jump and mile walk round out the list.

Of course the mile is top event, with Glenn Cunningham, Archie San Romani, Wayne Rideout (Brother Blaine withdrew because of a cold), Chuck Fenske and Luig Beccali chasing the Mayor Tobin trophy.

The two-mile likewise presents the nation's ace artists, including record holder Don Lash, and Tommy Deckard, Greg Rice, Walter Mehl, Joe McCluskey and George De George, each a distance titleholder.

Dick Gill and Doug Raymond of the B. A. A. will try to stave off the challenge of Howie Borck, Jim Herbert, Wesley Wallace and Harold Cagle in the G. W. Cronin Memorial 600.

The Paul Dever 880 field lists John Borican, John Woodruff, Campbell Kane, Gene Venzke, and Charley Beetham.

Those names are enough to indicate the caliber of this very fine program. In four of the five specials the world record holder will be speeding: Herbert in the 600 1.11.1); Baricon in the 880 (1:49.8); Cunningham in the mile (4:4.4); and Lash in the two mile (8:58).

Eagles Unveil 'Find' At V. F. W. Meet

The V. F. W. meet affords Coach Jack Ryder, Boston College track tutor for the past 20 years, the chance of seeing his ambitious young squad in action for the first time this season.

Ryder's mile relay team will battle it out with the running Rams of Rhode Island State, and the rest of the Boston College squad will be entered in various N. E. A. A. A. U. open events.

After weeks of pruning and more weeks of coaching mentor Ryder has chosen veterans Charlie Green of Brighton and Bill Dowd of Dorchester and sophomores Ed McCarthy of Medford and Ed Riley of Dorchester to uphold Maroon and Gold colors in the relay event.

In both the special 50-yard dash and the N. E. A. A. A. U. open event of the same distance, Boston College will be royally represented. Capt. Bill Gilligan, the 200-pound shot-putter, who gained fame as a member of last year's mile team, Lightnin' Lou Montgomery of the gridiron and little Gil "Chappie" Walker, last year's schoolboy dash king from Everett are entered in both events.

In Walker, Ryder feels that he has a coming champion. Gil has been thrilling track addicts at the Heights with sensational performances.

Over the 50 yard route Walker has been turning in a consistent 5:4, and quite often has ripped the distance in a rapid 5.3.

SQUARING BEAUTY ACCOUNT—Al Nettlow, Detroit ringman who makes ring foes homlier, sort of evens the score by facial massaging a fair lady in his beauty parlor. Al is a successful beautician, and a successful gloveman, too, the first such combination in fight history. He fought a slashing 8-round draw with Paul Junior in New York Monday night.

Ivy Holds Salamone To Draw; Junior Wins

By RINGSIDE

George Salamone, 132, East Boston, and Bob "Poison" Ivy, 132, Hartford, Conn., supplied one of the most furious fistic sessions ever witnessed hereabouts as they fought to a slashing ten-round draw, feature of a double windup, at Mechanics Building last night, before close to 3000 fans.

Paul Junior, Lewiston, Me., scored a unanimous decision over Carl "Red" Guggino, Hartford, in the secondary attraction.

Salamone and Ivy entered the ring with speculation held at even money.

The opening bell found the East Boston boy setting a terrific pace, evidently determined to end hostilities at once. However, "Poison" proved to be just what his name implied, and despite the fact he lost the opening canto, looked plenty capable.

IVY PROVES SMARTER

Ivy settled down to business as the fight progressed, outsmarting Georgie Inside, and poured the punishment on in the clinches.

Experience proved Ivy's best weapon. He repeatedly took advantage of any minor slips Salamone made and, going into the latter part of the bout, looked like a winner.

Salamone came roaring back and picked up points with sharp, jarring punches to the jaw, and held a slight advantage going into the final round.

Judge Montgomery and Referee Martin voted a draw, while Judge Curley cast his ballot for Salamone.

Paul Junior, 137, against Carl "Red" Guggino's 134½, simply waltzed to victory, taking the role of aggressor from the opening round and widening his margin as the battle rolled along, winning with ease.

Other bouts saw Leo Dukmaine, 130, Worcester, kayoing Bobby Martinez, 131½, Boston, four rounds; Martin Riley, 133, Fall River, chilling Eddie Letourneau, 129½, Portland, Me., in six heats, and Dusty Brown, 132, Fall River, outclassing Florant Desmarais, 129½, Manchester, N. H., six rounds.

Wellesley-Needham Top School Ice Card

By MICHAEL J. LOOLY

There'll be plenty of fireworks at the Arena tonight when the Bay State Hockey League swings into its weekly session but the big blowoff promises to come in the final game of the evening when Wellesley tries to halt Needham's splurge to the title.

Three other games, pitting B. C. High and Walpole; Quincy and Waltham; Framingham and Watertown, should warm up the fans for the feature contest.

Deadlocked with Waltham for the league leadership, Needham needs this game to keep at the top of the pack for the Watch City club should not run into serious difficulty in its game. A triumph would practically insure Needham's resting at the top, the leadership depending, as it does, on the basis of goals scored.

STIFFER COMPETITION

Last week, Needham's aces, Larry Arra, Don Lumsden and Mal MacLeod had their hand full against B. C. High while registering their third straight victory in spite of the 4-1 score. Wellesley promises an even stiffer clash in the night's wind-up.

Wellesley has lost one game in its three starts, to Waltham, but rebounded from that setback in fine form to take Watertown over the hurdles last week. Jack Cunniff, Ray Villa and Homer Mills, on the first line, will be Needham's big offensive worries.

NO HOPE FOR QUINCY

Quincy has failed to win a game in league competition, and does not appear capable of stopping Waltham from winning its fourth in a row. Perley Grant, Bob Connor and Hec Rousseau should boost their individual scoring records in their assaults on the Granite City nets.

Last week, Waltham scraped through to a victory over Framingham in the final few seconds of the game but should not have such a close call in this encounter.

Defending Champion Framingham stands a fine chance of breaking its losing streak against Watertown. Coach Harry Lawson's boys rest in the cellar with three defeats but may move out in this game.

B. C. HIGH GETS EDGE

Bob Mason gives B. C. High a slight edge over Walpole in the opening game. Walpole whipped Quincy last week but even then failed to show any quantity of power.

The smoke will hardly have cleared from these contests before the Greater Boston League moves into the St. Botolph st. grounds for the weekly session which pits Melrose and Cambridge Latin; Newton and Medford; Belmont and Arlington; Rindge Tech and Stoneham.

Rangers Tie Record; Bruins Keep Pace

Either the Toronto Maple Leafs play over their heads tomorrow night in Toronto—or the New York Rangers will set a brand new National Hockey League record for unbeaten play.

The Rangers last night came through with a splendid 5-3 triumph over the Chicago Blackhawks to match the league's 13-year-old record of 18 games without defeat. That mark was first set by Les Canadiens.

But the "pressure" was on the young Blue Shirts, and it took them two periods to get over an attack of the pitters and get rolling along. When they did, they were invincible.

KERR'S BIRTHDAY

Meanwhile, the Stanley Cup champion Boston Bruins were having a field day of their own against the crippled Toronto team, winning in Toronto by a 5-2 score and thus keeping themselves in a first place tie with the Rangers.

Twice last night the courageous Rangers knotted a one goal lead, and twice they blew it away before that terrific attack of theirs finally could undo the goal tending of Paul Goodman, rookie Chicagoan.

The victory was a celebration of Goalie Dave Kerr's 30th birthday. Kerr played as though inspired—just as he has ever since the rangers started their streak.

Bryan Hextall scored the first two goals for the Rangers, and the last three were fired in rapid succession in the third period by Lynn Patrick, Babe Pratt and Neil Colville.

CAIN SCORES FOUR

Hero of the Boston victory over the Leafs was Herbie Cain, who scored four of the five Boston goals to come within one goal of the record number scored by one player — a mark held jointly by Charlie Conacher of the New York Americans, and Pit Lepine of the Canadiens.

Three of Cain's goals came in the third period, and two of them were fired within 34 seconds of each other.

9271 SEE PICS TIE

The Boston Olympics and Valleyfield Braves played the opening game of their two-game series to a 2 to 2 overtime tie at the Garden, the Olympics remaining at the top of the Senior Provincial League.

A mid-week gathering of 9271 saw the 'Pics race from behind, the tying marker coming shortly after the midway mark of the last session, sending the hard-checking sextets into an extra inning.

Although the visitors had the better of the play throughout the 70 minutes, the Olympics had more opportunities to score.

It took only two minutes and 13 seconds after the opening gong for the visitors to take the lead. John Lapointe stole the puck away from a scrimmage near his own net and passed to Ray Mullins. Mullins, in turn, fed the rubber to Tony Demers at mid ice. With a shot that seemed as though it was fired from a gun, Demers let it go at Frazier from outside the 'Pics blue line. It caromed off Ted's arm and into the corner of the cage.

Cliff Thompson pushed in the equalizer at 12:24 with Paul Guibord and Bud Foster combining. His shot bounced off Gromoll's stick and over Lacelle's shoulder.

Lionel Lafontaine put the visitors ahead when he took a pass from John Lapointe at 6:11 of the middle stanza. They held this advantage until Frankie Spain teamed with Jerry Desrosiers and Dick Lewis two minutes after the midway mark of the last period, Spain tallying.

LAST TRY FOR PURES

Bay State ringmen step into the busiest evening of the year on Monday night at the Arena, when the Irish-American A. A. presents the fourth and final tryout tournament of the state championships.

Bouts in eight championship classes, flyweight to heavyweight, are billed and with the show offering Massachusetts boys their final chance to earn a place in the finals for the titles, you may be sure each will put his best glove forward.

"Pure" biffers are shooting for state titles in real earnest, for winners of the January 22 championship show will automatically qualify for the New England championships, at the Boston Garden on March 11, and only the New England titleholders will be allowed to represent the local association of the A. A. U. in the National Boxing Championships, also to be held at the Garden, the second week in April.

Amateurs from Milford and Gardner will play prominent roles Monday night. From Gardner will come Joe Landry in the 112 pounds class and Don St Jean, a hard-hitting middleweight.

Milford's color bearers will be John Martello, a bantam; Al Freda, one of the best lightweights in New England; Joe DiAntonio in the 147 pounds class and Tony Buckley, a bruising light heavy.

Other entries include Billy Hadley, East Norton, and John Linde, Fitchburg in the 126's, and Manuel Baptiste, Taunton, and Lou Vivolo, Boston, and Jack Brodsky, Chelsea, in the 160's.

Ice Comedians Will 'Steal' Show

Best comedy team of the figure skating world, Eddie Shipstad and Oscar Johnson, again is due to steal the show during the run of the Ice Follies at the Garden from next Monday night through the following Sunday.

For 15 years these two have been skating together, and they hold the world's record for skating more exhibitions than any other team. Their peak performance was in Chicago a few years back when they performed 19 times in a single day.

'FLATTERED,' SAYS SHAUGHNESSY

Stanford Berth Pleases Coach

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Jan. 12 (INS)—Clark Shaughnessy, who gave up a lifetime teaching appointment at Chicago University for a five-year contract as head football coach at Stanford University, was the unanimous choice of the Stanford Board of Athletic Control it was learned today.

Formal announcement of the selection of Shaughnessy to succeed Claude E. ("Tiny") Thornhill, ousted by alumni pressure, was made by University President Ray Lyman Wilbur.

Shaughnessy's Stanford salary was not announced, but it was believed to have been set at between $8500 and $10,000 a year.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12 (INS)—"I'm highly flattered to be given the opportunity to coach at such a great institution," declared Clark Shaughnessy today after he had been formally notified of his appointment as head football coach at Stanford University.

"I'm particularly glad to be able to continue in intercollegiate football," the happy mentor added.

When the University of Chicago announced on Dec. 21 that it would abandon intercollegiate football competition, no one was more shocked than Shaughnessy.

"I believe intercollegiate football has a distinct value to all participants from an educational standpoint. That's a conviction I've always had and always will have," he said.

Anything can happen in New England, as regards the weather! So, although at this writing skiing prospects weren't too bright, new snow may now cover Northern ski centers—we hope!

LATE FLASH: This morning at 8 a. m. powder snow was falling over all of northern New England, as well as locally. Talking with E. B. Rideout, meteorologist, we learned that skiing conditions will be considerably improved everywhere in New Hampshire. The fall may not be great, but should amount to at least several inches. Mr. Rideout added that while the snow may change to rain in Boston, there is slight possibility of this occurring in the North Country. As far down as Laconia, N. H., snow is coming down steadily, with the temperature well below freezing. At high mountain altitudes, good running may result.

SKI SCOOP—All the way from beautiful Bermuda have come Edward MURPHIE and his charming wife RENEE to try skiing in New England! And they had never seen any snow before until recently arriving in Boston by plane. They are thrilled by this new experience, and can't wait to get out on the slippery slats.

Mr. Murphie has the largest bicycle concession in Hamilton, metropolis of the Coral Isle. He and his wife have lived in this Paradise of sunshine and greenish-blue waters all of their lives, but suddenly decided they wanted some variety. "It has been hot and dull there lately," said they, "so we thought skiing sounded intriguing." So here they are, ready to answer the challenge of our white-topped peaks, and try the skier's way of life.

The Murphies haven't yet chosen the spot in New Hampshire where they will go, but expect to head Northward soon. We wish them plenty of powder snow, all sorts of fun, and "Ski Heil!"

Flying figures on wings of hickory will speed down flag-studded slopes, and through wooded glades and valleys, as the Cross Country and Giant Slalom Meet under the auspices of the Franconia Ski Club takes place this week-end at Cannon Mountain.

Sol Hannah, president of the ski club, says that the langlauf event definitely will be run at 1:30 p. m. Saturday from the aerial tramway valley station over the new 18-kilometer course in Franconia Notch, but that the giant slalom, scheduled for 10 a. m. Sunday, to be run preferably on the Taft trail and possibly on the Cannon trail, will be postponed unless eight inches more snow arrives. About 25 entries had been received for the slalom and 20 for the cross country race.

A gala and colorful dance will be held at the Franconia Town Hall Saturday night in honor of the visiting contestants, no ski boots or skis to be worn while "swinging your partners!"

SKI CLUB CHATTER: The Newfound Region Ski Club Association has planned a seven-mile cross-country race for Jan. 28. This is the first such event ever held in this area, and enthusiasm is high. The course has been laid out by Howard Chivers, former Dartmouth ski star, now coaching at New Hampton Prep School. Clubs entering six-man teams are the Oshoni, Hochfligers, Thompson, Black and Blue Trail Smashers, "35," and AMC . . .

We think that cross country racing is a grand idea; it builds up a skier's stamina and conditions him. . . . Members of the Newton Ski Runners have been working out at the Commonwealth Country Club lately . . . Billy Wales is one of their slalom stars . . .

The Lisbon Outing Club and the Lisbon Lions Club have merged to arrange winter sports events for the last week in January and the first week in February. They plan to hold a carnival ball, hockey games and ski races . . .

Organized a year ago, the Viking Ski Club of Claremont built the Twist Back ski jump, then held its first meet in a downpour of rain. This winter, the club, together with the Claremont Skating Club, hopes to stage a real skiing and skating carnival . . .

SKI SHOTS: A nice place for novices that has not been publicized is Lawrence Philbrook's Farm at Shelburne, N. H. Nearby are all sorts of inviting open slopes . . .

Another spot for skiers is the Mt. Whittier Inn at West Ossipee, N. H. Fred Poole, the manager, says the surrounding terrain offers sport for one and all . . .

That plenty of skis, boots, and other equipment are being sold can be seen in the smiling faces of the happy skiers who pour out of J. W. Brine's Sporting Goods Store . . .

Asa C. Osborn, likewise, reports plenty of business at his grand ski store . . .

Although forced to cancel his first snow cruiser to Laconia, N. H., last week, Hugh O'Brien, director, tells us that the week-end bus will leave this Saturday, as long as there is any snow . . . There will also be a sister coach operated daily, including Sundays, featuring an all-expense cruise which will cover a dinner and supper at the appointed hotel, as well as the free use of skis, toboggans, etc. . . .

The Cranmore Mountain Skimobile carried 52,000 skiers last winter, and with the number of cars now increased from 60 to 120, manager Phil Robertson expects to carry 100,000 this winter! . . .

Boys and girls in the grade schools at Plymouth, N. H., are receiving free ski lessons twice a week from one of the instructors in the Swiss Ski School. The slogan of this school must be, "One good stem-turn deserves another!"

BROUILLARD BATTLES POLE IN WORCESTER

A strong advance sale, indicated that the Lou Brouillard-Henry Chmielewski 10-round main bout, loomed as a sellout, with both fighters declared to be in excellent condition for tonight's battle at Mechanics Hall, Worcester.

The fight has taken on "grudge" proportions, with Lou scoffing off reports that the hard hitting Polish thunderbolt will be gunning for a knockout win and declaring he will repeat the win he already holds over Henry.

Johnny Lee's high class preliminary card includes Bomber Remillard, Fisherville, and George Montouris, Clinton, in the six-round semi-final.

In another six, Johnny Dougwillo, Grafton, will face shifty Frankie Campbell of Boston. The fours find Al Scully of Worcester meeting Mel Scalzullo of Fitchburg, and Leo Swacki, Worcester, battling Nicky Sullo, East Boston.

"Boston After Dark," by George Holland, appears every day in the Boston American.

Dizzy Returns Blank Contract

CHICAGO, Jan. 12 (AP)—"Dizzy" Dean's 1940 contract with the Chicago Cubs arrived at the Cubs' offices today with no signature on the dotted line.

Instead, Dean sent from Dallas, Tex., a note to Phil K. Wrigley, owner of the team, which said:

"I realize I haven't been much help to the club the last two years, but I still think the cut is too big. However, I'm sure we can adjust things and I'll be all set for spring training on time."

Dean, reported to have received $20,500 last season, was offered half as much as the result of winning only six games in 1939.

THE VETERANS OF Foreign Wars, who have made great progress in the matter of promoting track meets, will open the indoor track season in this city tomorrow night when they will stage a brilliant attraction at the Garden.

The B. A. A. used to have a monopoly on outstanding track meets. There was a period when the late Henry Lapham was head of the B. A. A. that the Unicorn club's track games would sell out at a $4 top. The reason for the success of the B. A. A. meet over a period of years was the fact it offered the best in track and field stars. Boston will always give fitting recognition to champions in any sport.

The K. of C., with Bill Kenney at the helm, then stepped into the track picture. The K. of C. meets grew in importance each year, and now rival the B. A. A. games in the matter of public interest.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars next organized an athletic department, and began staging first class track meets. This organization will set a new high at the Garden tomorrow night when it will feature some of the classiest track men in the United States.

Glenn Cunningham Competes in Mile

GLENN CUNNINGHAM, who seems to keep running indefinitely, will compete in the invitation mile for the Mayor Tobin trophy. Cunningham has never disappointed in any of his Boston appearances, and he is looking forward to thrilling the crowd in the Garden.

A glance at the entries for the invitation mile convinces one that Cunningham will have some severe competition. Listed among the opponents for the Kansas Flyer will be Archie San Romani, former national indoor champion and a 4m. 7s. miler; Wayne Rideout, runner up in the 1939 B. A. A. Marathon; Charles Fenske, winner of the Princeton invitation mile in 1939, and Luigi Baccali, 1932 Olympic champion from Italy.

Blaine Rideout was also scheduled to take part in this event, but he has been obliged to withdraw on account of a cold.

Joe McCluskey Comes Back to Boston

TRACK ATHLETES appear to stand up under the wear and tear of competition better than most athletic title holders. I note that Joe McCluskey, national outdoor steeplechase champion and a former Fordham great, will be trying to beat Don Lash, indoor record holder with a mark of 8m. 58s. set up in Boston in 1937, in the invitation two mile event. McCluskey's running ability and great courage have always made a hit with local track followers.

McCluskey and Lash will have as rivals Tommy Deckard, national indoor steeplechase champion; Greg Rice, national college champion; Walter Mehl, big ten mile champion, and George De George, New York A. C. Metropolitan champion.

The invitation 600 yards run will have such top starters as Jim Herbert, Harold Cagle, Doug Raymond, Dick Gill and Wesley Wallace.

In the 880 yard invitation, there will be John Borican, John Woodruff, Campbell Kane, Gene Venzke, who formerly did most of his running at a mile and Charles Beetham.

It is fitting that the 50 yards dash should be called after Arthur Duffey, Boston sports writer and former Georgetown star. Duffey was one of the greatest sprinters that ever lived, and he set up his marks in the days before they used starting blocks and other modern aids to records.

Arthur, of course, will be on hand to watch the event named in his honor. The starters will include Ken Clapp, Fred Cistor, Bob Schumo, Frank Zeimetz and Allan Tolmich.

I AM GLAD that the veterans have an event for the pole vaulters. The Garden offers a perfect setting for the pole vault. This event is always colorful, and has done much to make the B. A. A. meet attractive. The veterans were wise in adding this event to their program.

The remainder of the program is well rounded out, while an abundance of stars will sparkle.

Personally track sports have always had a large appeal to me, and I shall be parked in the Garden when the first trial heat of the 50 yards dash gets underway at 7:30 p. m.

Harry Kelley Lauds Chmielewski's Punch

HARRY KELLEY, who will handle Henry Chmielewski against Lou Brouillard in a 10-round bout in Worcester tonight, considers the "Polish Machine Gun" the hardest thumping middleweight in the country.

"Chmielewski gets all of his power behind his right hand punch, and has a chance of knocking out any opponent he can hit," said Kelley.

"Chmielewski has improved in his boxing, and is so better able to score with his sleep producing punch. The last time Chmielewski fought Brouillard he had Lou on the floor in the early rounds. Brouillard came on to win in a close finish.

"Since then Chmielewski won from Hewell King. I liked the way Chmielewski took King's best Sunday punches in the early rounds. Although Chmielewski was tipped over a couple of times he kept getting up, and finally knocked King down, and then went on to win the decision."

Silver Skates Candidates Compete in Walpole Meet

By OLYMPIAN

Tuning up for the Silver Skates Derby which will be staged under the combined auspices of the Boston American-Record-Advertiser in the Boston Garden on Feb. 4th, the fleetest knights and ladies of the steel blades in the East will strive for the annual New England Outdoor Speed Skating Championships at Turner's Lake, Walpole, tomorrow.

The races for the New England outdoor titles, which are given under the sanction of the New England Racing Association, have attracted the cream of the speed skaters of both sexes.

From them experts will get a good line on what is likely to happen in both men and women's senior events in the Silver Skates Derby. When such fields compete as will face the starting line in the Silver Skates Derby there is always a possibility of some "dark horse" dethroning the favored champion. But tomorrow's races will tend to show just who's who and what's what in speed skating here in New England, and who will have the best chances of winning the most costly and coveted prizes of all in the Silver Skates Derby.

IN THE PINK

This year the Boston American-Record-Advertiser is putting on the great ice classic just at the time when all the champions will be at their competitive peaks with their racing edges sharpened by plenty of competition.

Following tomorrow's races for the New England outdoor speed skating titles at Walpole the annual Connecticut State championships will be held on Sunday afternoon at Kensington, Ct.

Most of the skaters who will race at Walpole tomorrow will go to Worcester to compete in the Northeastern State championships on Sunday night.

STUFF about STEEDS

By Ken Kling

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.

DEAR EDITOR—After getting a slant at those much-publicized bathing beauties here in Miami, most of the guys are sending home for their wives. Some of these babies look like the Last Rose of Summer, while others look like the Last Rows at Minsky's.

Sammy Rennick couldn't ride last week. He acted as master of ceremonies at Dempsey's cocktail party and sprained his back taking bows. The kid topped Harry Richman, George Jessel and Nick Kenny with his wise-cracks.

Three long shots on the opening day at Hialeah made Al Jolson forget all about Ruby Keeler. The famous mammy singer isn't as sad as many have led you to believe.

This comes straight from the feed box. Jerry Brady, a steward at the Havana track, made his weekly appearance here in order to kidnap some star riders for Sunday's races at the Cuban resort. He induced Don Meade to take the trip. Yesterday, I secretly revealed to the fans the name of the beetle which Don will ride.

Mickey Rooney blew out of town when he was refused admittance to the race track for being under age. I offered to smuggle him in by dressing him up as an exercise boy, but the kid turned down the idea. Nice boy, and not a bit spoiled. Sammy Smith, the dapper trainer, led three colts to the post yesterday. They weren't as nifty as the pair of fillies he led to the Brook Club the night before.

The State Racing Ass'n threw a dinner at the Roney Plaza. I didn't feel hungry, so remained at home.

Here's some inside stuff: The horsemen are threatening to boycott the Florida track if the purses aren't increased. Almost a half-million berries passed through the machines opening day and only about 12,000 seeds were distributed in purses.

Almost everybody will pick Titilator as the winner of today's big race, but I have dug up a long shot. For info about it see my stooges, Joe and Asbestos.—KEN KLING.

Pro Hockey Owes Red Wings Prexy More Than Abuse

By BILL GRIMES

Since the National Hockey League came into the "States," C. F. Adams, former majority stockholder and ex-president of the Bruins, and James Norris, owner of the Detroit Red Wings have been the "Sugar Daddies."

C. F. Adams introduced professional hockey in the United States in the fall of 1924. Two years later, he guaranteed to underwrite $300,000 for the N. H. L. to purchase the Western Canadian Hockey League, thereby making it possible for Rangers, Chicago and Detroit to have big league clubs.

SAVED DETROIT

Along about the time that Old Man Depression had everybody buck on their flasks, James Norris stepped in the N. H. L. The Detroit Cougars were in bankruptcy. James Norris paid $660,000 for the Detroit Olympia, the Cougars and the Olympics of the International League.

Between them, C. F. Adams and James Norris have, to be conservative, contributed more than a million and a half dollars to sponsor professional hockey. Only the most rabid type of fan would invest that kind of money in hockey. And, there's no getting away from the fact that C. F. Adams was, and James Norris still is a hockey fan.

Ten years ago, when the scribes were fresh out of ideas for hockey stories, C. F. Adams was usually their victim. They hopped on the owner of the Bruins for criticizing referees and for demanding rule alterations.

Today, when the hockey writers are caught short for a story they go to work on James Norris.

LOVED HOCKEY

C. F. Adams and James Norris were, and still are, very successful business men when they started to lobby for their hobby, hockey. I question if either Adams or Norris entertained any thoughts of financial profits when they entered professional hockey. They loved the game and felt that they'd get a certain amount of relaxation by owning N. H. L. clubs.

In view of the fact that C. F. Adams brought professional hockey into the United States and that James Norris, after an expenditure of $660,000 to keep hockey in Detroit, bought the controlling interests in the Chicago Stadium, and came to Bill Dwyer's rescue, when the Americans were very much in the "red," it would seem that they are entitled to pop off, whenever the urge hit them.

For some years, the criticism directed at C. F. Adams rolled off him as easily as a duck sheds water. Finally, however, he got fed up and sold his interest in the Bruins.

N. H. L. MISSES ADAMS

The National Hockey League hasn't functioned as smoothly as of yore since C. F. Adams quit.

A year or so ago, the scribes began to tell their public about the evils of syndicate hockey. They conceived the idea that James Norris ran the N. H. L.

True, James Norris has well over a million dollars invested in the N. H. L., but he's not running the league. And, moreover, if he was the Big Boss and the N. H. L. was a syndicate, the Detroit Red Wings wouldn't be battling the New York Americans for last place.

Between the close of the 1938-39 and the opening of the current season, the N. H. L. attempted to equalize the playing strength of the clubs. The Chicago Blackhawks, Les Canadiens and the Americans received players from Rangers, Bruins and Toronto.

RANGERS SELL VET

Now, if the N. H. L. was a syndicate and James Norris was in control, it would have been the Detroit Red Wings, who would have received first consideration, not the Hawks, Canadiens or Amerks. The Wings have been slowly going to seed for two or three years. The Detroit crowds are getting smaller and smaller. James Norris is losing money sponsoring N. H. L. hockey in the Motor City.

After the Stanley Cup series last spring, Lester Patrick asked James Norris if he'd would like to buy Cecil Dillon, who had been with Rangers for ten seasons. A straight cash deal was negotiated and that was all the help that the Red Wings received from the N. H. L. Detroit has been carrying on with a squad comprised for the most part of youngsters, who came up through the amateur ranks of the Michigan-Ontario league, which was sponsored and, in a large measure financed by James Norris.

LEAGUE IN DANGER

In the event that James Norris gets fed up on the unfair criticism being directed at him and disposes of his hockey interests, the National Hockey League would be a very poor financial risk.

In fact, between the European war, and possible conscription in Canada, this spring, professional hockey is anything but a good investment for the promoters. And, if a man of James Norris' financial standing quits, the N. H. L. would be very liable to follow suit.

So, if the "boys" have the interest of hockey at heart, they'll take a different slant at some of James Norris' utterances, bear in mind that first, last and always, the Chicago wheat king is a fan and begin to pull their punches, or, at least, select a more eligible target.

GRID CLASSIC ENDS

SALEM DROPS PEABODY

One of North Shore's most ancient football rivalries was temporarily halted when a favorable agreement as to the site of the 1940 and '41 football games could not be reached, the sub-committee of the Salem High School committee announced as Peabody High was dropped from its 1940 grid schedule.

When the Salem authorities tried to arrange this year's Salem-Peabody date, they wanted the games for the next two seasons played at Bertram Field, Salem, where it is claimed, better accommodations are available. The Tanners were to receive 50 per cent of the gate also. But, when they failed to agree on these terms, Salem dropped the game and put Arlington in its place. The game will be played either Nov. 9 or 11.

The series between Salem and Peabody started way back in 1907 and, although relations were dropped in 1916, were resumed again in 1921. It has always been an outstanding game on the North Shore and drew approximately 12,000 annually.

Hope

Their faces portraying little of the wild, surging emotion in their hearts, families and friends of entombed miners gather in roped-off section near Bartley, W. Va., mine entrance . . . praying silently. Already 23 bodies have been recovered, and rescue crews are battling to reach 68 other miners . . . as hope fades.
